CLAIM

1. As elaborated in detail on pages 93 to 101 of this Claim the Plaintiff claims:
 - (a) General damages (compensation for losses that can readily be proven to have occurred and for which the injured party has the right to be compensated) for defamation relating to economic loss $3,395,135.00;
 - (b) Punitive damages: damages awarded to a Plaintiff in excess of Compensatory damages in order to punish the Defendant for a reckless or wilful act. Special and highly exceptional damages ordered by a court against a Defendant where the act or omission which caused the suit, was of a particularly heinous, malicious or high-handed nature. For personal injury in Tort the Plaintiff claims $250,000.00;
 - (c) Aggravated damages: damages awarded by a court to reflect the exceptional harm done to a Plaintiff of a tort action. The Plaintiff claims $250,000.00;
 - (d) Costs of this action on a full indemnity basis, together with applicable Goods and Services Tax therein in accordance with the Excise Tax Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. E – 15, as amended.

The Plaintiff

2. The Plaintiff, Michael Jack, (hereafter referred to as the 'Plaintiff') is a member of a racialized minority group being that he is a Canadian of Russian-Jewish heritage and speaks English with a heavy Russian accent.
3. The Plaintiff immigrated to Canada from Israel in June of 2000 and lived in Peterborough since September 30, 2000.
4. From January 2001, until August 2006, the Plaintiff studied and worked at Trent University in Peterborough, during which time he earned two degrees – Bachelor of Science in the Honours Program in Computer Sciences and Master of Science in the Applications of Modelling in the Natural & Social Sciences. He graduated from Trent University with a 91.4% cumulative average and during his schooling was the recipient of multiple awards and prestigious scholarships for his academic achievements, teaching assistance, interpersonal and leadership abilities, and research accomplishments.
5. From January 2007 to July 2008, the Plaintiff worked as a course instructor in the Computer Science department at Trent University.

The Defendants

6. The Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services operating as the Ontario Provincial Police ('OPP') under the command of, then Commissioner Julian Fantino and now Commissioner Chris Lewis. The following officers mentioned in this Statement of Claim (hereinafter 'Claim'), by virtue of their positions and their actions towards the Plaintiff during the course of their duties are reflective of the actions of the Ontario Provincial Police: Constable Marc Gravelle, Constable John Pollock, Constable Shaun Filman, Constable Jennifer Payne, Constable Jamie Brockley, Constable Melynda Moran, Constable Mary D'Amico, Constable Richard Nie, Sergeant Brad Rathbun, Sergeant Robert Flindall, Sergeant Peter Butorac, Staff Sergeant Ronald Campbell, Staff Sergeant Colleen Kohen, Superintendent Hugh Stevenson, Chief Superintendent Mike Armstrong and retirees Staff Sergeant Chris Newton and Inspector Mike Johnston.

BACKGROUND

7. As will be explained in greater detail in this Claim, the Plaintiff began working at the Peterborough Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police in January, 2009.
8. Unbeknownst to him he was given a very racially derogatory nickname by the Defendants several months before he even started working at the detachment. It was so secretive that he did not know about the existence of this nickname until many months after his termination from employment having been advised of it from an employee who was sympathetic to how the Plaintiff was treated yet was not willing to testify about it.
9. The Plaintiff sensed that he was not welcomed at the detachment from the very first day he began working there. Though he could not understand why at that time he hoped things would change and that he would feel more at ease when members got to know him more.
10. However, criminal acts of defamation by libel and slander (elaborated in greater detail on pages 74 to 93 under the heading Defamation by Libel and Slander), some of which were committed before he even began working at the detachment laid a foundation of disdain, contempt and hatred that in turn made it possible for the Defendants and/or made the Defendants feel comfortable to commit the various violations of the Human Rights Code and Ontario Provincial Police Orders against the Plaintiff.

11. It was not until the period of time after January 16, 2012, and before May 22, 2012, when the Plaintiff came to the knowledge of the criminal acts of defamation by libel and slander that he understood why so many at the detachment found it perfectly comfortable in treating him like trash or like an undesirable and terminated his employment.

GROUND FOR THE CLAIM

Recruitment to the Ontario Provincial Police

12. In August 2007, after several discussions with the Chief of York Regional Police in the Trent University weight-lifting room, during which the Chief advised the Plaintiff that his computer skills, multilingual skills and his military background constituted great assets in modern policing, the Plaintiff decided to pursue a career in policing.
13. In March of 2008, the Plaintiff obtained the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (hereinafter 'O.A.C.P.') Certificate of Results (hereinafter 'C.O.R.') as part of the mandatory set of requirements for an Application with the Ontario Police Services.

14. On or about March 31, 2008, the Plaintiff applied to the York Regional Police Service and the Ontario Provincial Police (hereinafter 'OPP').
15. The Plaintiff was interviewed by the OPP on May 29, 2008, during which the two interviewing Sergeants, namely Sergeant (hereinafter 'Sgt.') Joanne Whitney and Sgt. Steve Haennel, were impressed with his level of intelligence and his level of computer skills and following the interview his application was expedited for hiring purposes.
16. The Plaintiff signed an offer of employment on or about July 25, 2008, with the OPP at which time he was informed that he would be posted at the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP.
17. It is noteworthy that on July 27, 2008, the Plaintiff was invited for an interview by the York Regional Police which he turned down in view of having accepted the position with the OPP.
18. The Plaintiff attended the Ontario Police College (hereinafter the 'OPC') in Aylmer from September 1, 2008, until November 28, 2008, and graduated with a 91.6 % cumulative average.
19. The Plaintiff was recognized by the OPC as being one of the top recruits in physical fitness by receiving a 100% on the Ontario Police Fitness Award.
20. From December 1, 2008, until January 9, 2009, the Plaintiff was trained at the Provincial Police Academy (hereinafter the 'PPA').

21. The Plaintiff was recognized by the PPA as being the top recruit in his class of 110 recruits in handgun use by receiving the 'Top Dog' award.

Placement with the Peterborough Detachment

22. The Plaintiff was posted at the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP (hereinafter the 'Detachment') as a Probationary Constable beginning January 16, 2009.
23. Once placed at the Detachment, it became readily apparent that he was not welcome. The Plaintiff was immediately subjected to numerous acts of harassment and discrimination due to his status as a foreign borne individual and further due to his educational background and heavy Russian accent.
24. The Plaintiff later learned that prior to even arriving at the Detachment, some of the officers had already assigned him the racially derogatory nickname of 'Crazy Ivan' as they had learned in advance of his arrival that he was from Russia. He first learned of the nick name in October, 2010, from a meeting with Constable Duignan while at a Tim Horton's coffee shop in Peterborough. Cst. Duignan wrote the nick name on a paper napkin. Later on the Plaintiff got further corroboration of the existence of this nick name from another officer who is willing to provide testimony about it.

Mr. Tapp,

This is in response to a meeting with you concerning Mr. Jack. You ask me to address a couple of points and they are in addition to disclosure made earlier to the OPP. They are made in short point form to give the reader the basic understanding of the message.

- Mr. Jack had a nickname of Crazy Ivan. He was called this by members. I came to understand the nickname was associated to Mr. Jack because of his large gun collection.
- It was my observation that Mr. Jack often stayed after his shift to complete work assigned. He was consciences about completing his work on time.
- Mr. Jack was concerned about his appearance in uniform and it was always in good order.

Sincerely,

25. The napkin with Cst. Duignan's handwriting is copied as follows:

NICK NAME -
"CRAZY IVAN"

26. It was upon this backdrop (slandorous defamation) that throughout the duration of his employment at the detachment, as described herein, the Plaintiff was subjected to differential treatment, contrived negative performance reviews, overt discrimination and harassment, artificial and unsubstantiated complaints against him, unsubstantiated charge under the Highway Traffic Act filed by his supervising officer, reprisals for asserting his rights or voicing any objection whatsoever to the unequal treatment he received.

27. Between January 16, 2009, and August 20, 2009, the Plaintiff was assigned to the Platoon 'A' shift. The Plaintiff's shift supervisor was Sgt. Robert Flindall and his coach officer was Constable (hereinafter 'Cst.') Shaun Filman.
28. The Plaintiff was transferred to the Platoon D shift on or about August 21, 2009, based upon the investigation of the OPPA 8th Branch President, Detective Constable Karen German (hereinafter D/Cst. German) that revealed that he had been specifically targeted by members of his shift. As a result of his transfer to the Platoon D shift, his new shift supervisor was Sgt. Peter Butorac and his new coach officer was Cst. Richard Nie.
29. Unfortunately, the transfer did little to alleviate the treatment to which the Plaintiff was subjected to at the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP, and as a matter of fact made it even worse, particularly given that Cst. Nie and Sgt. Flindall were next door neighbours and, as was the case among many of the officers of the Detachment, close friends. The Plaintiff's work environment was poisoned regardless of which shift he was transferred to.
30. Ironically, though the move was to give the Plaintiff a so called "fresh start", Sgt. Flindall became the Acting Staff Sergeant of the Detachment and thereby oversaw the entire detachment, even the Plaintiff's new platoon.

Overt Discrimination and Harassment

31. During the Plaintiff's probationary period he was subjected to unwanted comments, jokes and harassment that in turn poisoned his workplace environment.

- (a) Before even meeting his colleagues at the Detachment he had been nicknamed 'Crazy Ivan' due to his Russian heritage.
- (b) Over the first few months of his work at the Peterborough Detachment on multiple occasions he was reminded that he had a thick accent.
- (c) In yet another incident sometime during the spring of 2009, he was confronted by Cst. Melinda Moran who asked him if he could speak with a Canadian accent. It was Cst. Moran who also went to the extent of advising Sgt. Flindall that the Plaintiff had a dislike of women and that he was surreptitiously videotaping her. Both of the accusations were blatant lies.
- (d) As a cumulative effect of comments such as these, the Plaintiff became very self-conscious of his accent. He reduced his radio communications to a bare minimum and in a multitude of instances resorted to using his personal cell phone instead of the radio for the fear of being reminded of his accent again.

- (e) Towards the end of the Plaintiff's probationary period this poisoned work environment also spread to the civilian employees with whom he had little contact. Few of these employees would have had any exposure to the Plaintiff in his daily activities, yet he was progressively treated with increased disdain by some of the civilian employees. The rumours that circulated among them included statements that 'He could not be trusted', 'He was not altogether there' and that 'He had problems.'

Differential Treatment and Derogatory Treatment

32. During The Plaintiff's eleven months probationary period he was also subjected to differential treatment by his supervisor(s) and colleagues.
33. The following are but a few examples of the differential treatment that the Plaintiff received while at the Detachment:
- (a) The Plaintiff observed that other rookies, who were not minorities and did not speak with an accent, were welcomed and supported by their respective coach officers within the Detachment. Whereas, from the very beginning the Plaintiff's coach officer, Cst. Filman displayed a very noticeable lack of interest in his training and development as an officer.
- (b) For example, when they were on the road, most of the time Cst. Filman would be operating the cruiser while the Plaintiff was sitting in the front passenger seat observing Cst. Filman constantly either text messaging or talking on his mobile phone. The Plaintiff truly felt like a burden to Cst. Filman.

(c) In another example, the Plaintiff can assuredly state that from the date he arrived at the Detachment to the date he was placed on another platoon, Cst. Filman rarely sat beside him when he did any reports at the computer. In fact the Plaintiff recalls it to be only a handful of times and even those times that he had Cst. Filman beside him were times he had to ask for his assistance. The Plaintiff quickly realized that there was no willingness on Cst. Filman's part to want to sit beside him to teach and assist him in the preparation of his reports. This realization was further confirmed when the Plaintiff once asked Cst. Filman, after being on his own for a month if Cst. Filman wanted to see what the Plaintiff was doing with respect to his task list to which Cst. Filman responded 'No, I can get all that off Niche.' Niche was the OPP's Record Management System.

(d) At times when the Plaintiff would attend the Detachment on his days off just to access the computer and read up on other officers' reports about various occurrences or just to work on his task list so as to allow himself maximum time on the road he would notice on many occasions other rookie officers seated at the computer with their respective coach officers beside them with conversations flowing freely between them. The Plaintiff envied that.

- (e) Despite the fact that the role of a coach officer is to ensure that the new recruits under their supervision are properly prepared to handle the situations with which they are presented, the Plaintiff was almost wholly left to his own devices to figure out how to do arrests, how to complete reports, how to handle complex investigations, and how an investigation unfolds from a walk-in complaint to the arrest and preparation of the crown brief stages, etc.
- (f) Though there were instances where Cst. Filman did show some assistance to the Plaintiff in the preparation of reports and crown briefs these were very few instances with the majority of these few instances being times that the Plaintiff had to advise Cst. Filman that he should be showing him how such reports, crown briefs and/or investigations were to be prepared and conducted.
- (g) Cst. Filman exhibited a noticeable lack of desire and an unwillingness to train the Plaintiff or share his knowledge with the Plaintiff, which was his duty. This is clearly evident from the first five Performance Evaluation Reports (hereinafter 'PER') that Cst. Filman prepared. The PERs were filled with copy/pastes from previous PERs, had specific examples which were clearly out of the time period for which the PER was prepared and had numerous spelling mistakes. Cst. Filman's persistent refusal to properly train the Plaintiff made the Plaintiff feel that he was not welcome and actually a burden to Cst. Filman.

- (h) The Plaintiff was the only one reprimanded in incidents involving other officers.
- (i) An example of this involved an incident that took place on January 30th, 2009, only a few weeks after being placed at the Detachment. While working a day shift and accompanied by Cst. Jeff Gilliam, in an attempt to stop a speeding motorist the Plaintiff misread the U-turn and put the nose of the cruiser in the ditch with no resulting damage to the cruiser.
- (j) A passing motorist stopped to render assistance by offering to pull the cruiser out of the ditch. The motorist used his own personal rope to tie to the rear axle of the cruiser which was still up on the shoulder of the road. Cst. Gilliam, being the senior officer present concurred with the decision to use the motorist for assistance. Cst. Gilliam and the Plaintiff got back into the cruiser before the motorist began pulling the cruiser out. In the process of removing the cruiser from the ditch, the cruiser struck a metal cautionary sign and sustained damage.
- (k) Sgt. Flindall attended at the scene of the accident. Due to the failure to follow OPP policy to call a tow truck in a circumstance such as this, Staff Sergeant Ron Campbell (hereinafter 'S/Sgt.') issued a negative 233-10 (an internal documentation) against the Plaintiff. The document rebuked the Plaintiff for 'inadequate operation of a police vehicle.' As a result, the Plaintiff was also negatively rated in the Police Vehicle Operations section of his Month 2 PER.

- (l) Despite the fact that the Plaintiff was accompanied by a more senior officer (2 years of experience) who was familiar with the OPP policy, the Plaintiff was the only one to be reprimanded and negatively documented for the incident. The Plaintiff knew this was wrong for he ought to have only been held accountable for the improper U-turn which placed the nose of the cruiser in the ditch. The damage to the cruiser on the other hand should have also rightfully fallen on the senior officer who ought to have called for the supervisor and a tow truck immediately. The Plaintiff can assuredly state that he was the only one issued a negative 233-10 based on S/Sgt. Campbell's comments to him. S/Sgt. Campbell told the Plaintiff that the negative documentation should have been shared by both officers, yet for some reason it was not.
- (m) Furthermore, the Plaintiff's coach officer, Cst. Filman never discussed the accident with the Plaintiff apart from uttering something to the effect that it was not his coaching, in the presence of other officers thereby further poisoning the Plaintiff's work environment.
- (n) There were also occasions where the Plaintiff handled investigations, but his work and any commendations were credited to other officers as though he had no involvement in the investigation.
- (o) An example of this was the investigation the Plaintiff conducted with respect to a Break and Enter on August 6, 2009. Constable D'Amico was named as the investigating officer even though the Niche indicated that the occurrence was assigned to the Plaintiff and it was him that conducted all aspects of the investigation. Sgt. Flindall recognized the efforts of all involved officers of the Platoon with the exception of the Plaintiff. He indicated in an e-mail to the involved officers including the Plaintiff that positive documentation was forthcoming to all. He indicated that he was giving all of the involved officers positive 233-10s however, he gave the Plaintiff a negative 233-10.

- (p) The Plaintiff was scorned by senior officers for offering assistance. Once during a morning briefing in the spring of 2009, the Plaintiff offered his assistance in developing a digitized system to prepare Crown Briefs. Having a solid background in the Computer Science field and recollecting that his interviewing officer, during the initial stages of his application for employment commented about how useful his knowledge in computer applications would be the Plaintiff saw an opportunity to put his skills to use and be recognized as a team player.
- (q) However, not only were the Plaintiff's efforts not appreciated, following the shift briefing he was told by Cst. D'Amico who was second-in-command at the time in a vexatious manner and in presence of other Platoon 'A' officers, 'You should keep quiet when a senior officer speaks. You might come across as knowing too much and it is not good for your career.' Cst. D'Amico further told the Plaintiff that there had been another officer who 'knew too much' and that he no longer worked at the Peterborough Detachment.

- (r) The Plaintiff viewed Cst. D'Amico's comments as a threat, especially given her seniority and level of influence in the Detachment. As a result of her comments, the Plaintiff feared expressing his opinions or offering his assistance.
- (s) The Plaintiff was singled out for his accent. The Plaintiff was the only one in the Detachment who suffered ridicule for merely speaking. As a matter of fact the Plaintiff was the only one at the Detachment that spoke English with a thick accent.
- (t) The Plaintiff was also singled out by Sgt. Flindall by being assigned calls for service that was beyond his level of knowledge and expertise at the time. Later, in a most derogatory and vexatious manner the Plaintiff was chastised by Sgt. Flindall who told him, 'I have never had such an incompetent recruit before.' His disgust of the Plaintiff was expressed very vividly.
- (u) In what appeared to be a contradiction to the Plaintiff previous assertion, having voiced some objections to how he was being treated, Sgt. Flindall also singled the Plaintiff out as being incapable of handling a simple call like a single motor vehicle collision.

- (v) For example, on December 8, 2009, while working a night shift the Plaintiff was dispatched to a motor vehicle collision in which a truck had struck a deer. The Plaintiff had attended and dealt with a dozen of those on his own before. However, when the Plaintiff asked Cst. Postma, the officer in charge of the shift, what his orders were with respect to handling the call, he advised the Plaintiff that he had spoken with Acting Staff Sergeant Robert Flindall and that the Plaintiff was not allowed to attend the accident on his own.
- (w) Cst. Postma further added that he knew the Plaintiff could handle a simple motor vehicle collision 'car vs. deer' by himself and that it was embarrassing for the Plaintiff to be accompanied by another officer for such a simple call, but that he had to comply with the Acting Staff Sergeant's orders.
- (x) Throughout the Plaintiff's tenure at the Detachment, he worked more shifts and took less vacation time than any other officer in the Detachment. Further, as a result of this fact and despite being a new recruit, the Plaintiff was often left on his own in violation of the training protocols advocated by the OPP and OPPA .
- (y) During the first eight months of the Plaintiff's probationary period he only received two progress meetings despite that these meetings were supposed to take place on a monthly basis. With the exception of the last three PERs all previous ones falsely alleged that progress meetings were held with him and that his PERs were reviewed with him by his supervisor and or coach officer.

- (z) As a result of being criticized by senior officers in the hearing and presence of other officers as well as being sternly berated by Cst. Jennifer Payne in the Constables' office where other officers were present, fellow officers would often openly reprimand and belittle the Plaintiff.
- (aa) On one occasion the Plaintiff was ordered by Cst. Filman to lay a charge that was not properly substantiated by the evidence at the time. Once the matter was thrown out of court the Plaintiff was left to then suffer the humiliation and shame of having laid the unsubstantiated charge.
- (bb) Finally, on one occasion on July 23, 2009, the Plaintiff's supervising officer, Sgt. Flindall, just before commencing his vacation leave directed him to have an individual arrested and charged with Criminal Harassment. He also ordered him to continue the detention of the individual by having the individual held for a 'show cause' hearing the next day before a Judge or Justice so as to get him released on certain conditions. This was contrary to everything that the Plaintiff was taught since there was legally no statutory authority to justify the continued detention of such an individual since he was not before the courts on any other charges. Furthermore the Plaintiff, as the officer in charge of the investigation, could impose the same conditions that a Judge or Justice would.

- (cc) Upon advice of another senior officer, namely Cst. Brokley, the Plaintiff released the prisoner on a Promise to Appear and Undertaking before an officer in charge with certain conditions. However, the common law spouse of Cst. Brokley, Cst. Payne found it necessary to alert Sgt. Flindall while he was on his vacation that the Plaintiff had disobeyed his orders. Sgt. Flindall, upon his return reprimanded him sternly advising him that he hated being disturbed while on vacation and in an irate voice stated, 'I have never had such an incompetent recruit yet.' Sgt. Flindall went on to tell him that his job was in jeopardy for mishandling the investigation and taking too long to complete it. Immediately following the conversation with Sgt. Flindall the Plaintiff told him that he was going to contact the OPPA for assistance.
- (dd) As a result of the overall treatment thus far, the Plaintiff contacted the OPPA on August 4, 2009, and conveyed his concerns to them. However, it was not long after doing so that the Plaintiff started experiencing severe reprisals.

Unsubstantiated Charge under the Highway Traffic Act

34. The Plaintiff was charged by his supervising officer Sgt. Robert Flindall under the Highway Traffic Act for 'Failing to Yield to Traffic on Through Highway'. The conduct complained of would have been more efficiently and appropriately dealt with by way of a conversation with the Plaintiff. As the Plaintiff was later advised, the charge was harsh, uncalled for and normally ought to be used as a result of an accident.
35. The specifics of the incident are as follows:
- (i) On August 15, 2009, the Plaintiff was working a day shift. At approximately 10:30 am Sgt. Flindall, Cst. Payne, Cst. D'Amico, Cst. Moran and the Plaintiff attended a family dispute call. They drove to the call with emergency equipment activated. The call turned out to be nothing and was cleared as non-reportable to the Plaintiff's badge.
 - (ii) While en route from the call to the Detachment the Plaintiff was charged by Sgt. Flindall under the Highway Traffic Act for 'Failing to Yield to Traffic on Through Highway'. Sgt. Flindall also issued the Plaintiff a negative 233-10 which accused the Plaintiff of 'inadequate operation of police vehicle'. Knowing that the Plaintiff had done nothing wrong to deserve this he felt utterly helpless and his career was literally at Sgt. Flindall's mercy.

- (iii) Due to the nature of the charge the Plaintiff requested and promptly obtained OPPA approval to cover the costs of the legal assistance to contest the allegation. The legal fees were approved by the Vice President of the 8th Branch of the OPPA, Sgt. Paul Zeggil, from Northumberland Detachment.
- (iv) Upon discussing the incident with Sgt. Zeggil, he indicated that his reason for approving the Plaintiff's request for coverage of his legal fees was that after reviewing the synopsis he believed the matter could have been handled differently by Sgt. Flindall.
- (v) As a result of the compulsory disclosure obligations the Plaintiff later learned that it was Cst. Payne who orchestrated the laying of the charge.
- (vi) The Plaintiff was exonerated of the charge by Justice of the Peace Carl Young on August 12, 2010. Nevertheless, the effect of the charge on the Plaintiff's career was evidenced in Month 8 PER, wherein Sgt. Flindall negatively rated the Plaintiff in two separate sections, namely, the Police Vehicle Operations and Personal Accountability.
- (vii) In the Personal Accountability section Sgt. Flindall accused the Plaintiff of not taking any responsibility for his actions with respect to receiving the Provincial Offence Notice. This accusation was based on the fact that the Plaintiff refused to simply plead guilty to the false charge and instead sought to clear his name through the judicial system as he was entitled to do.

(viii) It is the Plaintiff's belief that these kinds of negative reviews in his PERs demonstrate the amount of animosity that he experienced and was subjected to by his supervisor(s) and peers at the Peterborough Detachment.

(ix) PERs such as these re-enforced the Plaintiff's feeling of hopelessness and despair as a result of his status as an immigrant and a minority who spoke with a thick accent and also one that few officers wanted to associate with. Further, the Plaintiff is of the belief that this charge was nothing less than a reprisal action for contacting the OPPA and seeking their assistance from the ongoing harassment and that the charge was specifically orchestrated for the purpose of poisoning the Plaintiff's workplace environment and building up a file to justify the termination of his employment.

Failure to Address the Conduct at Issue

36. The Plaintiff was having a tough time adjusting to the unwelcome and unsupportive environment created by some officers on his shift. Several of the key officers at the Peterborough Detachment, primarily on the Platoon 'A' shift made the Plaintiff's life very stressful. The Plaintiff was constantly made to feel that he was not welcome at the Detachment.

37. The Plaintiff attempted to address his concerns with the OPPA and with the senior and supervising officers on numerous occasions, but unfortunately the discriminatory conduct itself was never addressed by the OPPA and the management of the OPP, even though they knew it was occurring. The following are some instances wherein the Plaintiff sought the assistance of those in positions of authority:

(a) Being that Cst. Filman was also the Detachment's OPPA representative, the Plaintiff advised him of his concerns with respect to the derogatory remarks that were being made by other officers. However, the OPPA and/or Cst. Filman did nothing to intervene or put an end to the conduct.

(b) In early May 2009, the Plaintiff advised Sgt. Flindall he did not feel he was getting the proper coaching and he had no one to seek help from. The Plaintiff also advised Sgt. Flindall of the derogatory comments being made by Cst. D'Amico. Despite acknowledging the Plaintiff's concerns, the discriminatory conduct on the part of his peers continued.

(c) On another occasion sometime in June of 2009, in an attempt to seek an understanding and assistance from Cst. Payne who had been assigned by Sgt. Flindall as the Plaintiff's mentoring officer (which in itself was in violation of the Ontario Provincial Police Orders (hereinafter 'police orders') since it is the coach officer who should be the mentoring officer) the Plaintiff divulged to her that he felt he was a nuisance to Cst. Filman and that he was not receiving the proper guidance and training as required. Though Cst. Payne did assist the Plaintiff on occasion it was through his specific requests for assistance that she did so. The Plaintiff soon came to realize that she was not willing to voluntarily assist him. This realization, along with her openly chastising the Plaintiff and false accusations of winking at her caused the Plaintiff to fear asking her for assistance.

(d) On August 4, 2009, the Plaintiff called Staff Sgt. Colleen Kohen addressing his concerns and seeking advice. S/Sgt. Kohen was the Staffing Officer in the Human Resources in the OPP Headquarters in Orillia. Despite having been instructed at the PPA to contact her if, as Probationary Constables, they were experiencing problems, the Plaintiff was advised by S/Sgt. Kohen that she worked with coach officers, not probationary officers. Instead, the Plaintiff was advised to contact the OPPOA.

(e) Upon contacting the OPPOA, the Plaintiff was put in contact with Detective Constable (hereinafter D/Cst.) Karen German, the President of the 8th Branch of the OPPA. On August 4, 2009, D/Cst. German advised the Plaintiff that she was going to look into his case.

Reprisals for Asserting the Plaintiff's Rights through Negative Performance Evaluation Reports

38. The probationary period of the Plaintiff's employment lasted a period of approximately 11 months during which time he was evaluated monthly over a spectrum of 27 core competencies. The Plaintiff's first few monthly PERs were mixed with mainly positive and some negative ratings. However, not long after the Plaintiff contacted the OPPA seeking help from the ongoing harassment and false accusations, he was subjected to an unusual amount of negative documentation in comparison to his cohorts whose performance was the same as his own.
39. On August 20, 2009, at approximately 5:40 pm, the Plaintiff was presented with his Month 6 & 7 PER by Sgt. Flindall. There were 10 'Does Not Meet Requirements' ratings. Ironically, just the day before the Plaintiff was handed his Month 5 PER by Sgt. Flindall which had no 'Does Not Meet Requirements' ratings, and which was overdue by two-and-a-half months.
40. The evaluator's name on the Month 6 & 7 PER was Cst. Filman (who was on vacation at the time) yet the evaluation was prepared by Sgt. Flindall and by

Cst. Payne and all the negative comments were thoroughly documented by Sgt. Flindall. The Plaintiff witnessed Sgt. Flindall working on it and in comparison with the previous PERs this one was almost devoid of spelling and grammatical errors aside from not having the coach officer's signature at the end of it.

41. The majority of the comments in the Month 6 & 7 PER in addition to being false, frivolous, vexatious and made in bad faith, dealt with the information which the Plaintiff had divulged in confidence with other colleagues. The Plaintiff was the only police officer at the Peterborough Detachment at that time being subjected to this type of treatment and unusual and extraordinary demands for his level of police experience by his supervisor(s).
42. Sgt. Flindall also handed the Plaintiff two in-house negative 233-10s which accused him of 'inadequate conduct.' It was at that time that the Plaintiff realized that he was being severely reprimed for standing up for his rights. The Plaintiff realized that he had been under the constant surveillance by several of his colleagues.
43. Sgt. Flindall told the Plaintiff to find a quiet spot, review the negative documentation and his Month 6 & 7 PER and sign them hopefully before 6:00 pm which was the end of their shift.
44. The Plaintiff was shocked that he was being slammed with so much negativity all at once and promptly contacted D/Cst. German on her cellular phone. Based on the advice of the D/Cst. German the Plaintiff declined to sign the two negative 233-10s and told Sgt. Flindall that he would like to have time to study his Month 6 & 7 PER, have it reviewed by an OPPA representative and respond to it accordingly before signing it. However, the Plaintiff soon found out that there was the word 'REFUSED' in the area of his signature even though he had merely requested for some time to review it. The Plaintiff had never told Sgt. Flindall that he was refusing to sign the evaluation report.

45. The number of negative ratings in the Plaintiff's monthly PERs increased contemporaneously with his assertion to the OPPA that he was not being properly coached and that he was being harassed by his peers.

Transfer to Platoon 'D' and Continuation of the Discriminatory Treatment

46. D/Cst. German investigated the Plaintiff's concerns and concluded that he had been targeted by some of his platoon members and by Sgt. Flindall. The Plaintiff's fears that he was specifically targeted and reprised as a result of having voiced his concerns was substantiated by D/Cst. German when she advised the Plaintiff that Sgt. Flindall had requested that his colleagues keep the Plaintiff under surveillance and report to him about his performance. Keep him under surveillance they did, for Cst. Payne even went to the extent of maintaining a separate notebook solely about the Plaintiff which in itself was in dire violation of police orders.

47. As a member, the OPPA had an obligation imposed by law to protect the Plaintiff and ensure that the appropriate action was taken should any preliminary investigations reveal violations of the Code. D/Cst. German's conclusion as President of the 8th Branch of the OPPA did reveal such violations not to mention violations of Police Orders as well. However, she did not include this information in her e-mail to the Plaintiff other than state in the e-mail that she had spoken with the Acting Superintendent, Doug Borton about the Plaintiff's issues at length and it was the Acting Superintendent Doug Borton's decision to move the Plaintiff to another platoon. To wilfully omit to mention the existence of such violations ultimately reflects the OPPA's willingness to side with the OPP and their desire to just cover it up and not do anything about it.
48. As a result of the findings of D/Cst. German, the Plaintiff was re-assigned from the Platoon 'A' shift to the Platoon 'D' shift. The Plaintiff was also assigned a new Coach Officer, Cst. Richard Nie, who unbeknownst to the Plaintiff was Sgt. Flindall's next-door neighbour, under the command of Sgt. Butorac. This information was formally communicated to the Plaintiff in a meeting that was held on August 19, 2009, between the Plaintiff, S/Sgt. Ron Campbell and Sgt. Flindall in the presence of an OPPA representative, Cst. Mitch Anderson.
49. S/Sgt. Campbell re-assured the Plaintiff a few times during the meeting that the transfer was not to be viewed as a punishment. However, Sgt. Flindall felt it necessary to inform the Plaintiff that he was in favour of the transfer on the basis that the Plaintiff had alienated the majority of the officers on his shift.

50. During the Plaintiff's time off duty in late August 2009, the Plaintiff was eagerly looking forward to a meeting with his new coach officer so that they could converse and get to know each other. Despite the Plaintiff calling Cst. Nie's home and asking for such a meeting, it never took place.
51. On September 9, 2009, the Plaintiff returned to work on Platoon 'D'. It was on this date that the Plaintiff submitted a rebuttal to his Month 6 & 7 PER signing and dating the last page. However, the PER had already been forwarded to the Human Resources in GHQ in Orillia with the word 'REFUSED' in place of the Plaintiff's signature. Ironically upon preparing his rebuttal to the Month 6 & 7 PER the Plaintiff found himself facing a marked increase in the number of negative ratings in his Month 8 PER.
52. It was on or about this first day on his new platoon that the Plaintiff, fearing that he might be accused of something or be reprimanded for leaving the presence of his new coach officer, asked Cst. Nie for permission to go to the washroom. Upon reflection much later the Plaintiff realized how much control his superiors exercised over him, for him to, by that time think it necessary to ask such a silly question.
53. The Plaintiff was assigned a new patrol zone – Zone 2 (the Plaintiff worked in Zone 3 for the first 8 months. It is noteworthy to mention that it takes a few months to adequately learn zone geography, which the Plaintiff did). The Plaintiff was forbidden to work on his own. The Plaintiff was forbidden to work paid duties. The Plaintiff was forbidden to work over time. From the first hour on the new platoon Cst. Nie started constantly finding 'faults' with the Plaintiff and meticulously documenting them in his notebook and in the Plaintiff's PERs. Later on and in reflection the Plaintiff realized why he was doing this. The targeting did not stop and the neighbourly relationship between Cst. Nie and Sgt. Flindall meant that the plan to terminate the Plaintiff's employment was being actively carried on.

54. Sometime in the middle of September 2009, the Plaintiff was given a copy of his Month 8 PER with 17 negative ratings. It was this evaluation that re-enforced the belief that the Plaintiff's days with the OPP were numbered and that he had been marked for termination for the PER that was given to him already had the boxes checked off indicating that a meeting had taken place and that the Plaintiff had an opportunity to review and sign the PER. The most important re-enforcement of this belief was the word 'REFUSED' printed in the place of the Plaintiff's signature.
55. From the beginning, Cst. Nie treated the Plaintiff inadequately and at times inappropriately. He frequently belittled and humiliated the Plaintiff. For example after the Plaintiff had bought a few cream puffs and éclairs on occasions at a local Coffee Time shop, Cst. Nie nicknamed the Plaintiff 'Cream Puff' and advertised his new nickname to other officers on the shift. The Plaintiff's self-esteem was constantly being eroded by this kind of treatment.
56. The Plaintiff recalls having been advised by a fellow officer to be very careful and to always remember that 'the pen is mightier than the sword.' Following the Plaintiff's assignment to Cst. Nie, this advice proved to be accurate. The Plaintiff received repeated negative performance reviews for illegitimate reasons under Cst. Nie's supervision.

57. No matter what the Plaintiff did or how he did it, Cst. Nie almost always found a problem with him. The Plaintiff grew fearful of his presence next to him. The Plaintiff was afraid of asking Cst. Nie questions. Every time the Plaintiff asked Cst. Nie a question he anticipated that Cst. Nie would find something wrong with either the question or with the Plaintiff.
58. The Plaintiff knew that if he disputed the negative comments in his performance evaluation reports he would have been targeted even more ruthlessly. This was evidenced when the Plaintiff had prepared a detailed rebuttal to his Month 6 & 7 PER and handed it in to his new supervisor in September 2009. In the Plaintiff's Month 8 PER he subsequently got 17 negative ratings which was seven more than the previous one. The Plaintiff had learned the hard way. The Plaintiff must re-iterate that by that time, his confidence, inspiration, decisive insight and belief in what he was doing were severely eroded.
59. Some of these PERs were wrought with fraudulence and had an alarming amount of specific examples that were carried over from previous evaluations where there was a rating of 'Meets Requirements' with new ratings of 'Does Not Meet Requirements' without any new information being added.

60. The Plaintiff had come to Canada to create a life for himself and he had great respect for this country that advocates Human Rights. However, in light of what the Plaintiff experienced and what he learned later on he was simply shocked at how blatant the OPP was in violating the Human Rights Code and the Criminal Code of Canada.
61. The Plaintiff's health was deteriorating. He lived his life in fear and absolutely hated coming to work. Also, due to the Professional Standards Bureau investigation launched against him, and further detailed below, the Plaintiff felt he was isolated with no rights.
62. Towards the end of October, 2009, the Plaintiff again raised some of his concerns over the discriminatory treatment he continued to experience – this time to his new sergeant. After reviewing the memorandum that the Plaintiff had prepared detailing his concerns, Sgt. Butorac stated that while he was sympathetic to the Plaintiff's plight 'They did not like whiners.'
63. The memorandum the Plaintiff gave to Sgt. Butorac:

Is my case hopeless or can I still climb the mountain?

By Michael Jack

19-Oct-09

If you want to help me then in order for me to regain my confidence back and ability to function I am asking you to loosen the grip on me and give me some independence. While being doubled up with Cst. Rich Nie appears to be good from the educational perspective, I feel that it has deprived me of the psychological air and drove me further to believe that I am a failure.

When I am being closely watched I cannot be myself. I become very hesitant at everything I do and continuously expect to be given directions and permissions. My mental and emotional focuses are directed on trying to stay out of trouble. In other words, instead of looking forward and doing my job with passion I get very tense and nervous about everything I do and go forward while looking backward in anticipation of being reprimanded again. I therefore continue "walking into the trees" over and over again.

It has been my life experience that when I knew what I wanted to get I always got it. I have also proven to myself that consciousness creates. We can literally create our lives with guided imagery and deliberate intention. In my current predicament the constant presence of a "Big Brother" next to me takes my will away and I remain blind and unable to be active, let alone proactive.

If you truly want to help me, I am therefore asking you to provide me with an opportunity to do my job without being scared. I am asking you to give me back the psychological air that I so desperately need. I am tired of being constantly stressed out. I got sick twice recently literally back to back. I know for the fact that as the result of my fear of losing the job and because I live my life in a constant state of stress my immune system is down. There is no way I can even be remotely productive or do any better under these conditions. No matter what development plans we put in writing on paper, they won't work. I have to see and feel my success through first and it can only happen when I get my will back.

I am not sure what you are ultimately trying to do with me. It is either you are trying to help me out so I can continue working on this platoon or you are protecting yourself from liability when the time comes to recommend me for dismissal from the employment with the O.P.P. I want to believe it is the former, rather than the latter, but I honestly do not know.

I want to continue working here and while I do need support and guidance at times, I feel that the constant presence of the "Big Brother" impedes my progress more than promotes it. I feel that I would be in a better position to help myself, the public, and the platoon if the "grip on my throat" was loosened a bit.

64. Sgt. Butorac failed to address the Plaintiff's concerns surrounding the discriminatory treatment and specific targeting that he was enduring from Cst. Nie. The conduct was allowed to continue and the Plaintiff's PERs were among the tools used to malign the Plaintiff's reputation.

65. On November 19, 2009, during his Month 10 PER meeting with Sgt. Butorac and Cst. Nie, the Plaintiff in a frank manner voiced his concerns regarding the PER. The Plaintiff was subsequently negatively rated for speaking out in the Respectful Relations section in his Month 11 PER.

Artificial and Unsubstantiated Internal Complaint

66. On September 23, 2009, following the Plaintiff's transfer to the Platoon 'D' shift, he was served with a Notice of Internal Complaint regarding an internal complaint that had been filed against him on or about September 11, 2009. The complaint alleged that the Plaintiff was associating with Undesirables and indicated that as a result he was under the investigation by the OPP's Professional Standards Bureau (hereinafter 'PSB'). The memorandum with the allegation was from Chris Newton, manager of the PSB and was assigned for investigation by D/Sgt. Tym Thompson.
67. The complaint was filed in contravention of section (1) (a) (vi) of the Police Services Act R.S.O. 1990, c. P. 15.
68. The complaint in itself was completely vexatious and discriminatory for the OPP was alleging that the Plaintiff was associating with Albanians who had criminal records and whom the OPP believed to be involved in organized crime. It was vexatious and discriminatory, for the OPP was referencing Canadian minorities who had criminal records as Undesirables. No Canadian citizen deserves to be referred to as an undesirable especially by a Ministry of the Government of Ontario.

69. In early December 2009, the Plaintiff received a formal memorandum (dated November 25, 2009) from the PSB Commander, Chief Superintendent Ken C. Smith that the file was closed as the complaint that the Plaintiff was associating with undesirables was unsubstantiated due to insufficient evidence. Though the Plaintiff would have liked to have seen the wording that 'the complaint was simply not true' the complaint served a purpose of alienating the Plaintiff further from the rest of the Detachment. The wording used clearly implied that though there was some evidence, there was not enough evidence to substantiate the allegation.
70. That complaint stemmed from a six year old photograph that the Plaintiff showed Cst. Payne's husband, Cst. Brockley shortly after commencing his employment at the detachment in January of 2009. The Plaintiff had suspicions that some of the people that worked out at the gym facility were involved in illegal activity. When he left that facility in 2003 he had some photographs taken and one of them showed him standing amongst five other individuals at the gym. It was two of these five individuals that the Plaintiff had suspicions of. Furthermore, he had not seen any of them since he left that gym.
71. The Plaintiff is of the firm belief that the complaint, aside from defaming him was filed with the sole purpose of further poisoning his workplace environment, poisoning the minds of the upper echelon and management of the OPP who worked in the General Headquarters in Orillia, maligning the Plaintiff's reputation and building up a file to justify the termination of the Plaintiff's employment. The Plaintiff believes this based on a simple question that can be asked: How can a six-year old photograph be deemed as articulable cause for an allegation of associating with the so called undesirables especially when the photograph was shown by the Plaintiff to a member of the Crime Unit, Cst. Brockley rather innocently just to see if anyone was recognized as being involved in illegal activity?

Termination of Employment

72. On the evening of December 13, 2009, the Plaintiff was served with a Notice of Proposed Release from Employment (hereinafter the Notice) together with the Performance and Conduct Requirements of a Recruit Constable by Acting Detachment Commander S/Sgt. Mike Reynolds. The recommendation that the Plaintiff be released from the employment with the OPP was made based on his alleged failure to meet the requirements of the position as a Probationary Constable. The Notice stipulated that the Plaintiff had until December 15, 2009, to make a written submission or to meet with the Chief Superintendent Mike Armstrong in person on December 15th, 2009, and address his concerns before a decision to terminate his employment was made. There appeared to be a faint ray of hope as purported in that notice.

73. That did not turn out to be the case as, immediately upon being ushered into the presence of Chief Superintendent Mike Armstrong on December 15, 2009, he proceeded to very bluntly state that the Plaintiff had two options: either to sign the resignation letter that he had already prepared or be fired. Chief Superintendent Mike Armstrong then requested the Plaintiff's phone number which he wrote down on a pre-printed sheet of the Plaintiff's resignation letter.
74. Of the four recruits that the Plaintiff started with at the Peterborough Detachment, the Plaintiff was the only one who was the minority, only one (in the whole detachment) who spoke English with an accent, only one who was not originally from the Peterborough area, only one who had a racially derogatory nickname 'Crazy Ivan' secretly assigned to him and the only one not to secure permanent employment with the OPP.
75. Following the termination of the Plaintiff's employment, D/Cst. German advised the Plaintiff that he had started at a very bad detachment within the OPP. Unfortunately, she was unwilling to put this down in writing and unfortunately this did little to ease the psychological trauma that the Plaintiff suffered as a result of his experience with the OPP. The Plaintiff's job was not just a paycheque. It was an essential component of his sense of identity, self-worth and emotional well-being.
76. The Plaintiff is also of the firm belief that his dismissal from employment with the OPP was orchestrated by a few officers from the Peterborough Detachment who were biased against the Plaintiff and who targeted him as a result of his status as an immigrant and his ethnic differences. The majority of the officers in the Detachment were locals from the Peterborough area. Moreover, blood relationships and nepotism flourished at the detachment, as is outlined in greater detail in item 104.

77. The Plaintiff's belief is reinforced by the information passed on to him from his Paralegal friend, Marc Greco whom he retained to represent him with his Highway Traffic Act matter. Though Mr. Greco had someone else who was unknown to the Plaintiff act in his place in order to preserve the integrity of the justice system he is able to provide testimony as to what was said to him or passed on to him while working out at Gold's Gym, a fitness facility wherein some members of the Detachment exercised:

"... I heard other officers make unfavourable comments regarding Michael Jack. OPP officer Marc Gravelle was a primary source with respect to these types of comments. He criticized me for representing Michael for his POA matter. He told me that Michael Jack was crazy, a loose cannon and suggested that I distance myself from him. The comments were made or passed to me while at Gold's Gym. Obviously, I did not heed Marc's warning as I did continue in my representation of Michael Jack."

Systemic Discrimination

78. It is noteworthy that, as previously mentioned, the majority of the officers at the Detachment were individuals who were born and raised in the Peterborough area.
79. The Plaintiff is not the only individual in the Detachment to have suffered discrimination on the basis of a protected ground. To the best of the Plaintiff's knowledge and belief other officers including Constable Lloyd Tapp and Constable Harry Allen Chase both of whom were minority officers and not from the local area were all subjected to similar targeted discriminatory treatment at the Peterborough Detachment.
80. Based on the information the Plaintiff has collected, it would appear that minorities are treated differently at the Peterborough Detachment and have difficulties in successfully completing the probationary period.

Similar Fact Evidence

81. As mentioned earlier Cst. Nie was also the coach officer of former probationary officer, Mr. Harry Allen Chase, who was terminated from his employment through repeated negative performance evaluation reports. Mr. Chase was a visible minority being that he was an African Canadian with a Native American heritage.

82. Though Mr. Chase had served with the Canadian Armed Forces for over twenty years and been in charge of a squadron and personnel and though he was held in high regard at the Ontario Police College and the Provincial Police Academy, the Detachment claimed that he had a learning disability with regards to his communication. Ironically, John Dawson, a white Canadian probationary recruit who arrived at the Detachment around the same time as Mr. Chase did and spoke with a severe stutter managed to pass his probationary period.
83. After Mr. Chase's dismissal from employment with the OPP, he filed a grievance with the OPPA for wrongful dismissal and a complaint with the Human Rights Commission of Ontario for dismissal based upon the alleged disability and failure of the OPP to accommodate. The OHRC forwarded his complaint to the OPP and since he had filed a grievance with the OPPA, the OPPA stepped in. The OHRC subsequently received a correspondence from the OPP that the OPPA was looking into this. Hence, the OHRC corresponded with him that they would no longer be handling his matter since it appeared that the OPPA was looking into it.
84. However, as alluded to earlier and now stated, the OPPA appears to have loyalty ties with the OPP and tends to protect the image of the OPP, because approximately a year after the OHRC removed themselves from the matter, thus effectively curtailing Mr. Chase's option of re-filing a complaint with the ORHC, the OPPA communicated with him that there were no grounds to go any further with his matter and that the OPP would be reimbursing him for his tuition fees that he paid to the Ontario Police College.

85. Furthermore, the Plaintiff is aware that Cst. Lloyd Tapp, having served almost fifteen years with Toronto Police Service (hereinafter 'TPS') without having the need to file any complaints with the Tribunal found himself having to do so shortly after arriving at the Detachment. His five Human Rights Applications outlining numerous violations were set for a five day hearing and on day three the OPP and his Counsel negotiated a settlement.
86. The Plaintiff is aware that Constable Tapp was targeted, treated differently than others, had his work environment poisoned, had false complaints laid against him, was subjected to an unusual amount of charges under the PSA and even falsely charged under the Highway Traffic Act. The latter being an incident that wrought havoc on his family until the charges were dismissed after an ensuing trial. However, the damage had already taken its toll on him. He was diagnosed with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. The OPP subsequently transferred him to the City of Kawartha Lakes Detachment in April of 2009, where he was the only visible minority officer there at that time. It was not long afterwards that the OPP managed to coerce him into a medical leave of absence and he is currently on disability benefits with the OPP's insurance company.
87. The Plaintiff is aware that there are other minority officers within the OPP who have been discriminated against, but are reluctant to come forward due to fear of reprisals.

88. Based on the aforementioned the Plaintiff is of the firm view that the OPP does discriminate against minorities that attempt to assert their constitutional rights. What is common in the three individuals mentioned above is that they are all minorities, they were not locals to Peterborough County, they were educated with considerable life and work experience and they were not liked at the Detachment. The Plaintiff is hopeful that once this Claim is publicized more victims within the OPP may get the courage to come forward.

Effects of Discrimination

89. Prior to starting his employment the Plaintiff was enjoying a successful career as a Computer Science instructor at Trent University. As mentioned in the section entitled 'background', he was rated as one possessing strong interpersonal skills and a very high degree of leadership attributes. He was found to be a focused and goal oriented academic.
90. The Plaintiff genuinely believed he was going to have a very successful career in policing based on his progress at the OPC. However, he did not know that he was going to a Detachment that already had a very racially derogatory nickname for him and a Detachment that was not open to recruits who were not local to the area especially a minority recruit that stood out like a sore thumb with a thick Russian accent.

91. The experiences that the Plaintiff was subjected to by the OPP caused severe stress in the Plaintiff's life to the extent that in August, 2010, the Plaintiff was diagnosed with Post Traumatic stress Disorder by his family physician and prescribed various medications. Referenced here, are some of his medical records, all of which will be made available in due time:

92. Long after his termination from employment he struggled to get his health back but found that his concentration on even the simplest of tasks was extremely difficult. His list of medications that he was placed on did little to alleviate the psychological trauma he suffered from.
93. He experienced and continues to suffer from, among other things, anxiety, depression, sleeping disorders, poor concentration and deteriorating health.

94. In mid-2010, he started to document some of his sufferings in a diary. The Plaintiff's depression was so strong that he thought of committing suicide and fearing that he would go crazy he decided to leave Canada and return to his parents in Israel. The following is a copy of some of his entries from his diary which consists of a total of 38 pages:

09:20 AM

JUST GOT UP. LIED IN BED FOR AN HOUR OR SO AFTER WAKING UP.
FEELING PRETTY BAD, AS USUALLY.
WHAT A LAME LIFE. NEVERTHELESS, GOT TO MOVE ON. MUST MOVE ON.

4-AUG-10

YESTERDAY EVENING A FRIEND CAME OVER
WE HAD A NICE CHAT. I ~~FEEL~~ FELT CHEERED
UP. IT WAS HELPFULL TO TALK. STILL HAD TO TAKE A SLEEPING PILL AND DID NOT WANT TO GET OUT OF THE BED
THIS MORNING. PRAYING AND WAITING FOR THINGS TO TAKE A POSITIVE TURN IN MY LIFE. WHEN?

APPLIED FOR A COUPLE JOBS TODAY. ALSO ~~WENT~~ DROVE TO A FARM OF THE WOMAN
THAT SELLS EGGS AND OFFERED MY HELP
AROUND THE FARM. I DO NOT CARE
WHAT TO DO. I JUST FEEL THAT WORKING OUTSIDE IN THE NATURE CAN HELP ME CURE MY DEPRESSION. WE AGREED TO BE IN TOUCH AS IT WAS A SURPRISE FOR HER.

1:00 AM ON 5-AUG-10

SWOLLED SLEEPING PILL. OFF TO BED
SOON.

26-AUG - 18:50

HAD A FEW UPS AND DOWNS OVER THE PAST 3 DAYS. ON THE POSITIVE SIDE, I HAD A SEMI-FORMAL JOB INTERVIEW ON TUESDAY IN MISSISSAUGA. THE PERSON WHO INTERVIEWED ME IS A TRENT UNIVERSITY GRADUATE. I WAS HIGHLY RECOMMENDED TO HIM BY ONE OF OUR PROFESSORS. HE SAID HE WAS GOING TO HELP ME. THAT GIVES ME HOPE.

TUESDAY WAS A VERY HAPPY DAY FOR ME, FOR A CHANGE. MANES ONE WONDER WHAT A BIT OF HOPE OR JUST A SENSE OF MAKING PROGRESS CAN DO TO INSPIRE, MOTIVATE, ALLEVIATE MENTAL SUFFERING, RELIEVE THE NEED FOR BEING ON MEDS, ETC. YESTERDAY, I WAS OK. NOTHING TOO EXCITED BUT MORE OR LESS STABLE MOODWISE.

TODAY I PLUNGED DOWN AGAIN. DID NOT SLEEP WELL, COULD NOT GET OUT OF THE BED TILL NOON, WAS JUST LYING THERE FEELING MISERABLE AGAIN, AND WHEN I FINALLY GOT UP I HAD NO DESIRE TO DO ANYTHING. COMPLETE LACK OF APPETITE.

I THOUGHT OF GETTING DRUNK FIRST BUT THEN SAW MY LANDROLD OUTSIDE PAINTING THE PRIVACY PORTION OF THE DECK AND

STEPPED OUTSIDE TO HELP HIM, SO I
PAINTED AND THEN CLEANED THE PROPERTY AROUND THE HOUSE AND BURNED GRASS AND SOME CARTON GARBAGE
IN THE FIRE PLACE. BY THE TIME I FINISHED IT WAS ALREADY 17:00 AND MY LANDLORD MADE ME A DINNER.
I DEVELOPED APPETITE AND HAD MY
BREAKFAST, LUNCH, AND DINNER ALL
AT THE SAME TIME. WORKING OUTSIDE WAS BENEFICIAL.

11:45AM SLEEPING PILL → BED.

27-AUG-10 10:30AM

FINALLY GOT UP. NOT SURE WHAT I AM GOING TO DO TODAY YET.

I AM FUCKED. I CANNOT TAKE THIS MISERY ANYMORE. NOTHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO.

28-AUG-10 5:00 AM

ERIC AND I HAVE BEEN DRINKING ALL
NIGHTS. I BOOKED TICKETS TO ISRAEL
FOR 6 WEEKS. WANT TO SEE MY

PARENTS. IF I DO NOT, I DO NOT FEEL
I WILL SURVIVE MUCH LONGER.

31-AUG-10 18:55

JUST BOARDED EL AL PLANE IN NEW YORK BOUND FOR ISRAEL.

SENT MY FRIEND/ROOMMATE ERIC TEXT
MESSAGE THANKING HIM FOR DRIVING
ME TO THE AIRPORT AND HELPING ME
IN GENERAL. HE REPLIED: "DO ME PROUD,
LEARN HAPPINESS, JOY, AND HOPE, EVEN IF THEY DON'T APPEAR OBVIOUS. AND CLEAR
YOUR FREAKING MIND OF NIGHTMARES!!;)"
I RESPONDED THANKING HIM AGAIN.

10:10 PM

HAVE BEEN UP IN THE AIR FOR THE PAST
3 HOURS. I FEEL HOW SICK MY MIND IS. I AM NOT ACTING IN A RATIONAL MANNER,
BUT RATIONAL ENOUGH TO UNDERSTAND THAT SOMETHING IS VERY WRONG. I TOLD MYSELF: "NO MORE ALCOHOL" I KNOW I WILL WANT TO DRINK
WHEN I MEET WITH MY PARENTS AND FRIENDS AND I WILL BE ASKED TO DRINK, BUT I MUST
AND I WILL SAY NO TO ALCOHOL.
I MUST SEIZE THIS "GOING HOME" OPPORTUNITY TO GET OUT OF DEPRESSION AND BOOZE.

I CANNOT FORGIVE MYSELF FOR NOT
TIPPING THE SHUTTLE SERVICE DRIVER THAT DROVE ME FROM LA GUARDIA TO JFK
AIRPORT. I APOLOGIZED TO HIM FOR NOT HAVING ANY MONEY. I LIED. I HAD MONEY,
BUT ONLY CANADIAN CURRENCY IN
$20 BILLS. I WISHED I HAD SOME US
CURRENCY, IN SMALLER BILLS, BUT I HAD NONE. I SHOULD HAVE GIVEN HIM
A $20 BILL BUT I WAS GREEDY. NOW
I FEEL AWFUL ABOUT IT. THE MONEY SAVED IS NOT WORTH THE PAINS OF CONSCIOUSNESS. I AM ASHAMED OF
MYSELF. I FEEL VERY COMPASSIONATE
TOWARDS LIVING BEINGS. I RECENTLY
HIT THE BRAKES WHEN I WAS DRIVING
TO AVOID ~~RUNNING~~^{DRIVING} OVER A FROG.
I WANT TO HELP PEOPLE. I DO NOT WANT TO KILL ANIMALS. I USED TO HUNT. I DO NOT THINK I WILL HUNT
ANYMORE. ~~IT IS SO~~ IF I DID NOT
EMBARK ON THIS SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED
JOURNEY TO ISRAEL I DO NOT KNOW
WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED TO ME.
PETERBOROUGH COUNTY OPP RUINED MY LIFE. WILL I BE ABLE TO REBUILD IT?
I AM SO CONFUSED AND LACKING

STRENGTH. I AM TIRED OF LIVING. I AM GOING TO SEE MY FAMILY IN ONLY A FEW HOURS BUT I AM NOT TRULY HAPPY. I FEEL I AM A LOSER. WHAT HAVE I ACCOMPLISHED IN 10 YEARS IN CANADA? EARNED 2 ^{UNIVERSITY} ~~SCIENCE~~ DEGREES AND A COLLEGE DIPLOMA? STILL DRIVING THE SAME OLD CAR THAT I BOUGHT IN YEAR 2000 WHEN I JUST CAME TO CANADA, STILL OWE MONEY FOR MY COLLEGE EDUCATION. AT AGE OR ALMOST 38 YEARS OLD I AM IN DEBT, LACKING STRENGTH, NO DESIRE TO LIVE, NO PURPOSE IN LIFE, WHILE I SPEAK 3 LANGUAGES AND HAVE DEGREES AND DIPLOMAS UP THE ASS, WHAT WAS THE PURPOSE OF IT ALL? WHY THE FUCK DID I JOIN OPP? TO RUIN MY LIFE IN SUCH A WAY? I BETRAYED MY PARENTS, I LOST MYSELF, EVEN BRINKS WOULD NOT ^{WINE} ~~TALK~~ TO ME. EVERY TIME I MENTION I WAS A POLICE OFFICER I GET ALMOST IMMEDIATELY ASKED WHY I QUIT. I FEEL EMBARRASSED EVERY TIME. THE MOST DEPRESSING ASPECT OF IT ALL IS THAT I FEEL I HAVE NOTHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO.

1-SEP-10 11:18AM (ISRAELI TIME)

WE'LL BE LANDING SOON, IN 1.5 HOUR
A DIFFERENT CONTINENT → CHANGED
LIFE. NO POISONING MYSELF WITH PILLS, ALCOHOL, TOBACCO. I NEED
TO RECOVER. I HAVE AN OBLIGATION TO DO JUSTICE.

6-SEP-10 15:40 (ISRAELI TIME)

SO FAR SO GOOD. 5 DAYS OF NOT SMOKING, DRINKING, TAKING PILLS.
I AM ALL NATURAL NOW, POISON FREE.
I STILL SLEEP ONLY INTERMITTENTLY,
USUALLY WAKING UP AROUND 2-3 AM, UNABLE TO FALL ASLEEP AGAIN. STILL
THINKING ABOUT MY PREDICAMENT
WITH THE OPP. BEING WITH MY FAMILY HELPS A LOT, THOUGH I SEE
THEY NOTICE MY INTERMITTENT ABSENCE-MINDEDNESS AND LOSS OF
CONCENTRATION. HOWEVER, I FEEL
MUCH BETTER NOW AND I WILL IMPROVE.
HERE IS AN INTERESTING POINT:
AFTER I GOT KICKED OUT FROM THE
OPP I COULD NOT FIND A FULL-TIME
JOB. EVERYTIME I MENTIONED THAT

I WAS AN OPP OFFICER, I WAS IMMEDIATELY ASKED WHY I LEFT; I WAS LOOKED AT DIFFERENTLY, I SAW IT, I FELT IT. THE ONLY PLACE I GOT A PART-TIME JOB WAS TRENT UNIVERSITY IN THE COMPUTING & INFORMATION SYSTEMS DEPARTMENT WHERE I HAVE BEEN ALWAYS HELD IN HIGH-REGARD. ANYWAY, I CAME TO ISRAEL, CALL MY OLD ~~FOO~~ COLLEAGUES AT INTEL ELECTRONICS LTD. AND ONE OF THEM IMMEDIATELY INVITES ME OVER FOR AN INFORMAL JOB INTERVIEW → ON 8-SEP-10. FOR 8 MONTHS AFTER BEING FIRED FROM THE OPP I LOOK FOR JOBS AND CANNOT GET ANY REAL/DECENT/FULL-TIME, ~~I CAME TO ISRAEL~~ OVER THIS TIME I SINK DEEPER AND DEEPER INTO DEPRESSION THINKING OF ENDING MY ~~THE~~ MISERABLE EXISTENCE. I GATHER UP MY STRENGTH AND TAKE OFF FOR ISRAEL AND WITHIN A WEEK I HAVE A JOB INTERVIEW ~~THE~~ ~~UP~~ LINED UP AT AN INTERNATIONALLY RENOWNED AND RESPECTABLE COMPANY. I AM LOOKING FORWARD TO THE INTERVIEW. I FINALLY START FEELING PURPOSE IN MY LIFE.

10-SEP-10 06:30 AM

WOKE UP AT AROUND 5:00 AM IN FEAR. PETERBOROUGH DETACHMENT IS STILL HARRASSING ME. DO NOT REMEMBER WHAT THE DREAM WAS ABOUT BUT IT SCARED ME. MET WITH A BUNCH OF OLD FRIENDS YESTERDAY. IT WAS VERY GOOD. DID NOT TELL THEM THE TRUTH ABOUT LEAVING POLICE. JUST COULD NOT TELL THEM I WAS KICKED OUT. CAN'T BEAR THE SHAME OF IT. I FEEL A LOOSER.

THOUGH I AM FEELING BETTER PSYCHOLOGICALLY, I AM NOT HAPPY IN MY LIFE. THE WONDERFUL THING ABOUT COMING TO ISRAEL IS THAT I AM NOW 10 DAYS DRUG FREE. NO CHEMICALS IN ANY SHAPE OR FORM, NO DRUGS, NO SMOKE, NO BOOZE. I AM ALL NATURAL NOW.

14-SEP-10 7:00 PM

I REGAINED NORMAL SLEEP. I GO TO BED AT AROUND MIDNIGHT AND GET UP AT 6:00 AM. YESTERDAY, HOWEVER, I EXPERIENCED AN ANXIETY ATTACK. I HOPED I WOULD HAVE NO MORE OF THOSE. I WAS WRONG. I CHAINED SMOKE 3 CIGARETTES TO QUELCH IT. I AM DISGUSTED OF MYSELF. I FEEL LOST. I AM BROKE.

95. A year and a half after returning to Israel he managed to secure employment. However, even upon gaining employment in Israel he continues to struggle to maintain objectivity with whatever he is working on at work due to bouts of depression. Furthermore, severe anxiety always seizes him if he is called in to his employer's presence to explain anything.

Conclusion

96. The discriminatory and the differential treatment that the Plaintiff endured during his probationary period at the Peterborough Detachment surpassed everything that the Plaintiff had experienced in his lifetime.
97. The Plaintiff was discriminated against, harassed, bullied, humiliated, belittled, subjected to unreasonable demands and unsubstantiated criticism, oppressed and retaliated against for standing up for his rights or otherwise mistreated at work.
98. All of the above negatively affected the Plaintiff's mental and physical health, feelings and self-respect and further resulted in the loss of dignity. The Plaintiff experienced Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, severe anxiety, depression, loss of concentration, stress, sleeping disorders and muscle pain in a variety of areas. All of which were provoked by the actions of the Defendants and the poisoned work environment.

99. The amount of stress the Plaintiff experienced also brought on chronic fatigue syndrome towards the end of his employment with the OPP. The Plaintiff's emotional health continues to be affected to this day for what happened to the Plaintiff was simply wrong and evil. Furthermore, the ever present realization that the Plaintiff could have had a successful career at Trent University as a Professor had he not have pursued a career in policing with the OPP is forever depressing. Yet again, the ever present realization that the Plaintiff could have had a successful career in policing had he followed through with the application stages with the Halton Regional Police and York Regional Police Services is also depressing. Then again, had the OPP have just treated the Plaintiff like a human being the Plaintiff is certain that he would have been a great asset to them for his trilingual and computer skills would have certainly been put to use in some of the OPP's Specialized Provincial Units. The overall effects of these realizations continue to play havoc with the Plaintiff's emotional and mental health.
100. It was the duty of the OPP and particularly those officers in positions of authority to ensure that the Plaintiff worked in a harassment-free environment and to foster his abilities as an officer. Instead, they did just the opposite. In doing so they did not uphold the Ontario Public Service pledge to provide a workplace environment free of violation under Ontario's Human Rights Code.
101. To this date the Plaintiff has difficulty focusing on tasks. He does not sleep well. His mind is crowded with memories of discrimination, harassment, belittling, and accusations of incompetence and wrongdoing that he was subjected to at the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP. Ever since the day of the Plaintiff's forced resignation from the OPP his life has been a living nightmare. It was exacerbated by the fact that he was unable to gain related employment due to his experiences with the OPP.

102. The Plaintiff believes that he was: defamed by slander and libel; targeted and discriminated against by the members of the detachment due to his place of origin, ethnic origin, racial status, strong Russian accent and the fact that he voiced his concerns regarding the differential and discriminatory treatment that he was being subjected to.

103. Based on the Plaintiff's knowledge of the make-up of the officers at the Detachment when he was there and how closely knit and organized they were in building up a file to justify the Plaintiff's forced termination, the Plaintiff is mindful of the current definition of the word 'Mafia':

(a) Any tightly knit group of trusted associates.

(b) A closed group of people in a particular field, having a controlling influence.

(c) Any small powerful or influential group in an organization or field; clique.

104. Specifically, the Plaintiff's key personal Respondents: Sgt. Robert Flindall, Cst. Jennifer Payne, Cst. Shaun Filman, and Cst. Richard Nie were all local to Peterborough area with a scope of view limited to their county only. All four of them had good working relationships that extended beyond the confinement of police work. Sgt. Robert Flindall and Cst. Jennifer Payne were very close friends. Sgt. Robert Flindall and Cst. Richard Nie were next-door neighbours. Sgt. Flindall's father (Inspector Bill Flindall) used to be a Peterborough County OPP Detachment Commander. Cst. Shaun Filman's father (Cst. Brad Filman) used to be a senior Constable at the Peterborough County OPP Detachment. Moreover, Sgt. Robert Flindall's wife, Cst. Tanya Flindall, was a Constable with the City of Kawartha Lakes Detachment, which is a neighbouring detachment, and later on transferred to Peterborough Detachment. Cst. Tanya Flindall is a sister of Sgt. Trevor Banbury who in turn was a shift supervisor at Peterborough Detachment. Thus, Sgt. Robert Flindall and Sgt. Trevor Banbury are brothers-in-law (and good friends too). Moreover, Sgt. Trevor Banbury's father was a Sergeant at Peterborough Detachment. Cst. Jennifer Payne and Cst. Jamie Brockley were common-law spouses. Cst. Mike Gravelle and Cst. Marc Gravelle are brothers at the Detachment. Cst. Jeff Knier and Cst. Amanda Knier are husband and wife. In short, without naming anymore names at this point, there were many more officers at Peterborough Detachment who are originally from Peterborough County, residents of the county and are probably related in some way.

105. The Plaintiff believes that, being that the OPP falls under the Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services, which in turn is part of the Ontario Public Service, the failure of the OPP to comply with the mandate of the Ontario

Human Rights Code and with the training and direction to all Ministries via computer training modules on 'Valuing Diversity' is reflective of the Government of Ontario's failure to prevent such violations as mentioned in this Claim from occurring.

Lost Opportunities

106. The termination of the Plaintiff's employment under the circumstances orchestrated by the OPP has made it impossible for the Plaintiff to gain employment as a Constable with any other police service.
107. On January 13, 2010, despite having had two very successful ride-alongs experience with the York Regional Police Service in December 2009 where the Plaintiff's policing and multi-lingual skills were put to use and despite the fact that the Plaintiff had already been offered an interview in the past prior to his experience with the OPP, the Plaintiff was denied the opportunity to apply for a position of Constable with the York regional Police Service on the basis of his file with the OPP.
108. Between January of 2010 and July of 2010, the Plaintiff corresponded with the Toronto Police Service, Peel Regional Police Service, Durham Regional Police Service and Halton Regional Police Service. Though the Toronto Police Service and Halton Regional Police Service allowed the Plaintiff to apply for a position of Constable as a new applicant they both turned the Plaintiff down almost immediately after he submitted his applications.

Wrongful Dismissal

109. Section 72 of the Labour Relations Act (1995) addresses employers with respect to how they are to deal with employees:

Employers not to interfere with employees' rights

72. No employer, employers' organization or person acting on behalf of an employer or an employers' organization,

(a) shall refuse to employ or to continue to employ a person, or discriminate against a person in regard to employment or any term or condition of employment because the person was or is a member of a trade union or was or is exercising any other rights under this Act;

(b) shall impose any condition in a contract of employment or propose the imposition of any condition in a contract of employment that seeks to restrain an employee or a person seeking employment from becoming a member of a trade union or exercising any other rights under this Act; or

(c) shall seek by threat of dismissal, or by any other kind of threat, or by the imposition of a pecuniary or other penalty, or by any other means to compel an employee to become or refrain from becoming or to continue to be or to cease to be a member or officer or representative of a trade union or to cease to exercise any other rights under this Act. 1995, c. 1, Sched. A, s. 72.

110. As mentioned earlier in this Claim the Plaintiff's demise started to quicken downhill rapidly after he chose to exercise his rights to complain to the OPPA.

111. The decision to terminate the employment of the Plaintiff was made in November, 2009. This is supported by PER 10 wherein the coach officer comments that he does not support permanent employment status for the Plaintiff. His comments are dated November 10, 2009 and they are supported by the Detachment Commander who makes his comments on November 10, 2009, as well. The coach officer's supervisor, Sgt. Butorac, also supported the decision as his comments and signature are dated November 13, 2009. This very order is contrary to police orders of the OPP.

112. The OPP used the following three criteria to support the termination of the Plaintiff's employment:

(a) Failure to meet the requirements of his Performance Evaluation Reports;

(b) The charge under the Highway Traffic Act (HTA);

(c) The internal investigation by the OPP's Professional Standards Bureau in the allegation of Associating with Undesirables.

113. However, as mentioned earlier in this Claim the PERs were wrought with wilful neglect and fraudulence.

114. As further mentioned earlier in this Claim under the sub heading, 'Unsubstantiated Charges under the Highway Traffic Act' the charge was false, made in bad faith, malicious and used to further negatively rate the Plaintiff in his future PERs. Although he was exonerated in the ensuing trial the following year the charge was instrumental in the termination of his employment.

115. The internal investigation was also deemed to be lacking merit. As referenced under the sub heading entitled, 'Artificial and Unsubstantiated Internal Complaint' in this Claim, though it concluded with a final determination of 'Unsubstantiated,' once again the damage had already been done as it had a negative influence on Command Staff in the OPP's general headquarters in Orillia.

116. It is in light of this information and the information mentioned under the heading 'Reprisals for Asserting the Plaintiff's Rights through Negative Performance Evaluation Reports' of this Claim that the Plaintiff believes that he has met the elements of the offence under subsection 72(2) of the Labour Relations Act thereby justifying this Claim for wrongful dismissal.

Failure to Accommodate

117. Items 118 to 125 have been copied from the Claim against the Ontario Provincial Police Association since these items form the background for items 126 and 127, both of which are pertinent to the OPP.

118. As a member, the OPPA had an obligation imposed by law to protect the Plaintiff and ensure that the appropriate action was taken should any preliminary investigations reveal violations of the Code.

119. Furthermore, the Labour Relations Act in section 12 states:

‘A trade union or council of trade unions must not act in a manner that is arbitrary, discriminatory or in bad faith in representing any of the employees in an appropriate bargaining unit....’

120. Rule 1.2.3 of the OPPA’s Policy and Procedures state:

‘As a member of the OPPA’s Board of Directors, a Board member represents the membership of the OPPA not simply their individual component. In all decision-making processes of the OPPA, Board members shall always put the interests of the membership ahead of any personal or group-specific interests.’

121. The conclusions of D/Cst. German as President of the 8th Branch of the OPPA, which spoke for the OPPA as a whole, did reveal violations of the Ontario Human Rights Code and violations of the Ontario Provincial Police Orders.
122. The OPPA under rule 4.7.1 of its Policy and Procedures relating to Legal Assistance states:
- ‘4.7.1 The intent of the program is to provide legal assistance to members in situations where the OPP refuses or where the Ministry's legal Counsel is unable to represent the interests of the members. In such situations the OPPA will normally provide the services of legal Counsel to members who may be subject to legal inquiries, civil actions, provincial offences or criminal charges, including appeals, arising out of the legal performance of their duties.’
123. Despite the Plaintiff contacting the OPPA in the fall of 2009 and faxing his PERs for their review and despite the findings of D/Cst. German, as evidenced above, the OPPA chose not to intervene and put an end to the treatment the Plaintiff was experiencing at Peterborough Detachment.
124. As a cumulative effect the OPPA did fail in its duty to accommodate the Plaintiff when such conclusions were brought to their attention.
125. The Plaintiff believes that the OPPA is vicariously responsible for the actions of its representatives under section 107 of the Labour Relations Act.

Vicarious responsibility

107 (1) A prosecution for an offence under this Act may be instituted against a trade union or council of trade unions or employers' organization in the name of the union, council or organization.

(2) Any act or thing done or omitted by an officer, official or agent of a trade union or council of trade unions or employers' organization within the scope of the officer, official or agent's authority to act on behalf of the union, council or organization shall be deemed to be an act or thing done or omitted by the union, council or organization. 1995, c. 1, Sched. A, s. 107.

126. The findings of D/Cst. German's investigation were communicated to the OPP as well since the Plaintiff was transferred from one platoon to another, but the transfer was in vain.

127. Furthermore, the Plaintiff asserts that the OPP did fail to accommodate him in providing him with a workplace free of harassment and discrimination especially in light of their acknowledgment via e-mails that the Plaintiff's rights were being violated under the Ontario Human Rights Code.

DEFAMATION BY LIBEL AND SLANDER

128. The Criminal Code of Canada defines what a defamatory libel is in section:

298 (1) A defamatory libel is matter published, without lawful justification or excuse, that is likely to injure the reputation of any person by exposing him to hatred, contempt or ridicule, or that is designed to insult the person of or concerning whom it is published.

(2) A defamatory libel may be expressed directly or by insinuation or irony

(d) in words legibly marked on any substance; or

(e) by any object signifying a defamatory libel otherwise than by words.

129. The Criminal Code is very clear in defining 'publishes' wherein it states in section:

299. A person publishes a libel when he

(a) exhibits it in public;

(b) causes it to be read or seen; or

(c) shows or delivers it, or causes it to be shown or delivered, with intent that it should be read or seen by the person whom it defames or by any other person.

130. The Criminal Code makes the publication of a defamatory libel an indictable offence and creates a higher penalty when the defamatory libel is known to be false in section:

300. Everyone who publishes a defamatory libel that he knows is false is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years.

132. Whereas in the absence of knowing the libel to be false the Criminal Code provides a lesser penalty in section:

301. Everyone who publishes a defamatory libel is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

133. In light of these sections of the Criminal Code the Plaintiff claims that:

- 1a. It was in and around the time of his two ride-alongs in the summer of 2008 with Constable Marc Gravelle and Constable John Pollock, both of whom were members of the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP that he was given the racial nick name of 'Crazy Ivan.'
- 1b. Though he did not become aware of this nick name until many months after the termination of his employment, the fact that it was used to reference him in his absence and behind his back is clear to an ordinary person that to reference the Plaintiff with such a nick name in his hearing and presence would be derogatory, offensive and hence slanderous.
- 1c It would be derogatory and offensive since the Plaintiff is Russian by birth and the name Crazy Ivan is synonymous of 'Ivan the Terrible' of Russia who was known for his butchering of human beings and other atrocities towards humans in the late 1500s in Russia. By giving reference to the Plaintiff by such a name one was in essence referencing him as a 'CRAZY RUSSIAN.'

1d. The Plaintiff is of the belief that section 298(1) of the Criminal Code of Canada imposes the same elements for defamation by slander for the nick name did injure the reputation of the Plaintiff at the Detachment by exposing him to hatred, contempt and ridicule. In doing so the nick name was slanderously defamatory.

2a. It was in and around the time of his two ride-alongs in the summer of 2008 that these two officers, Cst. Gravelle and Cst. Pollock lied to Sgt. Brad Rathbun in stating that the Plaintiff talked about the many people he had shot and killed during his time with the Israeli Army. These two officers even lied about the number of guns the Plaintiff had in his possession. The Plaintiff was a member in the local gun club, namely the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, and was a collector of vintage firearms some of which he showed to these two officers when they dropped him off at his residence at the end of each ride along. The Plaintiff showed them his collection in an attempt to impress them about how safely they were stored (each of the firearms with individual trigger locking mechanisms and all stored in an extremely heavy and secure fireproof gun vault). All Sgt. Rathbun had to do was access the Canadian Firearms Registry Online via the computer on his desk and he would have seen that the Plaintiff had 22 registered firearms and not

32. This simple verification, if done, ought to have caused him to question the credibility of the information from those two officers.

2b. The Plaintiff believes that the manner in which they talked about him to Sgt. Rathbun along with the lies was defamatory for it did create in the mind of the sergeant an impious perception about the Plaintiff that was utterly false. The Plaintiff had to serve three years mandatory time in the Israeli Navy and not the Israeli Army. His 3 years of service in the Israeli Navy consisted of providing technical support within the confines of Israel without any exposure to actual war. Aside from firing his firearm during routine military firearms training he never had to use it in any actual defensive or offensive operation. He was demobilized with honour upon the completion of his mandatory three year term of service. It was easy for one to fabricate a story (of the Plaintiff seeing action and killing people) and exaggerate the actual number of firearms the Plaintiff had. By referring to him as a crazy Russian ('Crazy Ivan') they were able to convince their supervisor that the information was true and hence the supervisor sent out an e-mail to show that Command Staff should be equally concerned. After all, the Plaintiff was from the Middle East and the Middle East is always in the news as being at war. The Plaintiff is a Russian Jew and Israel is full of Jews so he must be a trigger happy or gun happy Russian (Ivan) Jew.

2c. The sergeant's documentation of this perception ('concerns that were hair raising') in an e-mail and then disseminating it so that it can be read and seen by management at the Detachment was libellously defamatory. This e-mail then gets circulated within management at the OPP's General Headquarters thereby raising a false alarm that the OPP may have made a mistake in granting employment to the Plaintiff. The publication of this defamatory libel did cause the OPP to have the Plaintiff undergo a second interview with the OPP's Psychologist, Dr. Denise Lapalme. The psychologist turn told him that one of the two officers that he went out with reported to their sergeant that you were a gun happy individual and the sergeant reported to the staff sergeant who in turn reported to the inspector who in turn contacted headquarters in Orilla. The psychologist told me that they made me out to be a tempest in a teapot and even asked me if I had killed anyone.

134. The Plaintiff is in the possession of documentary evidence that attests to the defamatory libel from Sgt. Rathbun that is referred to above.
135. For all of the aforementioned, the Plaintiff truly believes that, in light of section 299 of the Criminal Code the offence of sections 300 and 301 have been committed by the Defendant OPP and were it not for the January 16, 2012 disclosure obligations deadline imposed by the Application that was before the Human Rights Tribunal of Ontario the Plaintiff would not have realized these serious Criminal Code violations.
136. The Plaintiff further believes the dissemination of the e-mail from Sgt. Rathbun was not done in a manner whereby one could claim it to be a private communication since it was circulated to various departments within the general headquarters of the OPP thereby making it public albeit within police personnel.

137. The Criminal Code creates a dual procedure offence for anyone who communicates statements other than in a private conversation that wilfully promotes hatred against any identifiable group:

319 (2) Everyone who, by communicating statements, other than in private conversation, wilfully promotes hatred against any identifiable group is guilty of

- (a) an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years; or
- (b) an offence punishable on summary conviction.

(3) No person shall be convicted of an offence under subsection (2)

- (a) if he establishes that the statements communicated were true;
- (b) if, in good faith, the person expressed or attempted to establish by an argument an opinion on a religious subject or an opinion based on a belief in a religious text;
- (c) if the statements were relevant to any subject of public interest, the discussion of which was for the public benefit, and if on reasonable grounds he believed them to be true; or

(d) if, in good faith, he intended to point out, for the purpose of removal, matters producing or tending to produce feelings of hatred toward an identifiable group in Canada.

(6) No proceeding for an offence under subsection (2) shall be instituted without the consent of the Attorney General

138. Being that the Plaintiff is a member of an identifiable group in Canada the slanderous nick name 'Crazy Ivan' and the publication of the defamatory libel by Sgt. Rathbun as mentioned in section 2a of item 133 did promote hatred in so much that it did produce an atmosphere of intolerance towards the Plaintiff that in turn developed into contempt and hatred with acts of racial discrimination being perpetrated towards the Plaintiff.
139. Aside from Sgt. Rathbun's defamatory libel not being true, it was made in bad faith for it presumed that the OPP Command Staff ought to have some concerns about him, concerns that would be 'hair raising.'
140. An example of this defamatory libel producing an atmosphere of intolerance is when, upon Sgt. Rathbun's e-mail in getting disseminated amongst management in general headquarters of the OPP, caused the Plaintiff to be subjected to another psychological assessment to see if there was anything wrong with him. The Plaintiff was singled out by being taken out of a physical fitness test by Mr. Peter Shipley, the Chief Instructor of the PPA, and walked to the OPP psychologist's office for this second examination. Sensing the formality of the escort made the Plaintiff scared and it caused him to ask Mr. Shipley what this was all about. What he was told by Mr. Shipley caused him alarm and re-enforced the fear that he felt. Mr. Shipley told the Plaintiff, 'If you have anything to tell me. You'd better tell me now.'

141. That defamatory libel from Sgt. Rathbun caused the OPP to order management at the Detachment to keep an eye on the Plaintiff. This is confirmed by the Plaintiff's future sergeant, Sgt. Flindall communicating an e-mail to management at the Detachment in September 2008 (more than three months before the Plaintiff was scheduled to commence working at the Detachment) asking them if the Plaintiff was the recruit that they needed to keep an eye on, reference his love for guns, etc.
142. That defamatory e-mail from Sgt. Rathbun produced an atmosphere of intolerance that was felt by the Plaintiff on his very first day at the Detachment.
143. An example and clear indication of Sgt. Rathbun's defamatory libel producing an atmosphere of intolerance that developed into contempt and hatred towards the Plaintiff can be referenced from item 33 sub clause (cc) of this Claim wherein his sergeant (Flindall) tells him in a firm and authoritative voice and in a tone that was raised and filled with disgust that he has never had such an incompetent recruit before.
144. As mentioned earlier in this Claim the Plaintiff was openly chastised and ridiculed by officers senior to him as well as his supervisor. The Plaintiff believes that officers chastised and ridiculed him in such an open manner because he was not one worthy of any respect.

145. In another example of contempt and hatred towards the Plaintiff, Constable Filman and Constable Payne, just a few days after the Plaintiff's internal investigation complaint becoming public knowledge use an old occurrence report that documents the Plaintiff's involvement in a call that members of the Detachment attended in 2005 when the Plaintiff was employed as a security guard. The Plaintiff had investigated a disturbance and minor theft during the course of one shift as a security guard. However, Cst. Payne's contempt and hatred towards the Plaintiff causes her to forward something old that she believed the OPP missed in their background investigation of the Plaintiff. She forwarded a private e-mail to Sgt. Flindall who in turn sent it to Inspector Johnston. Ins. Johnston then forwarded a private e-mail to Superintendent Hugh Stevenson with his concerns. However, Sup. Stevenson was then libellously defamatory when he spoke badly about the Plaintiff in his e-mail that he disseminated to various departments of the OPP's headquarters in Orillia with a copy to management of the Detachment. By virtue of his position the comments he made about the Plaintiff added fuel to the flames of hatred, contempt and disdain that the Plaintiff had already sensed when he started at the detachment and was now experiencing from various personnel at the Detachment. In the e-mail about the old occurrence Superintendent. Stevenson defamed the character of the Plaintiff by stating,

“This information speaks to the character of this member – prior to his OPP involvement and missed in his OPP background check.”

146. The fact that it did develop into hatred and disdain towards the Plaintiff is proof that the elements of the offence in subsection 319 (2) of the Criminal Code were met.
147. The OPP was further libellous in their false accusation of the Plaintiff provided by way of a written memorandum accusing him of associating with Undesirables. The Undesirables referenced were two Canadians of Albanian descent in a six year old photograph standing alongside the Plaintiff with three other individuals in a fitness facility. The OPP alleged that two of those persons in the photograph were drug dealers and that the Plaintiff was still associating with them based on the six year old photograph.

149. This allegation was particularly offensive to the Plaintiff since he had never taken any illicit drugs in his life. Furthermore as a Canadian citizen he knew that no Canadian deserves to be labelled as an undesirable even if they have a criminal record. As referenced under the heading 'Artificial and Unsubstantiated Internal Complaint', being accused of associating with an Albanian organized crime under the defamatory libel of 'Associating with Undesirables' is another example of how the original defamatory libel from Sgt. Rathbun developed into contempt and hatred towards the Plaintiff.
150. The background of this allegation stems from a licence plate that I queried while in the execution of my duties. The section of the Plaintiff's statement pertaining to this query has been appended below:

Even though I ran the plate in the lawful execution of my duties and their suspicion of my motives turned out to be totally false, Insp. Johnston still felt uneasy about the whole thing! The truth of the matter is that by September 23, 2009, the Respondent knew that I had not queried the surveillance vehicle plate on purpose. And even if I had queried the surveillance vehicle plate, there was absolutely nothing wrong with that because it was my duty to query plates during routine traffic patrols. Moreover, if I wanted to query the surveillance vehicle plate with malicious purpose would I really be that stupid to run it on the air over the police radio with my thick

Russian accent for everybody to hear that? And even if I was that stupid and had a malicious intent then what information could have I possibly obtained by running it? It would come back as registered to a rental company or the Province of Ontario. Another truth is that at that time I was not even aware of the existence of undercover surveillance vehicles, let alone about the undercover registration company that the OPP used to register their surveillance vehicles with. However, no one did anything to stop the unsubstantiated and false complaint to the Professional Standards Bureau against me! Is this what Sgt. Flindall called, 'every opportunity to succeed'?

151. The publication of this new defamatory libel by way of official memorandums to the Inspector and other supervisors of the Detachment did make the Plaintiff feel like an undesirable. It soon became common knowledge amongst the employees at the Detachment that he was under investigation for associating with undesirables. The Plaintiff literally felt the contempt and disdain personnel had towards him at the Detachment.
 - (i) Had the OPP have used the wording of 'You are being investigated for Discreditable Conduct under the Police Services Act in so much that it is alleged that you are associating with persons involved in criminal activity' there would no grounds for any offence under the Criminal Code relating to a defamatory libel.

(ii) The Plaintiff however believes that it is in light of the aforementioned information that the OPP Defendants have committed the offences of sections 300, 301 and 319(2) of the Criminal Code and reiterates that were it not for the January 16, 2012 disclosure obligations deadline imposed by the HRTO he would not have realized how much of an impact the allegation of associating with undesirables had on management. Though management knew that the Plaintiff had not run an undercover vehicle licence plate and hence the allegation was frivolous and false it still left them feeling suspicious about the Plaintiff for Inspector Johnston sends out an e-mail to management at the detachment and management at Orillia stating that he still feels uneasy about the whole thing.

153. In yet another libellously defamatory act the Plaintiff was served a copy of his Month 8 PER with the wording 'REFUSED' printed in capital letters in the place of his signature and with the box beside each of the three pre-printed statements in the section containing the location of his signature checked off purporting among other things that a meeting was held with him and the PER was reviewed with him. The marking of these boxes also purported that at the evaluation meeting the workplace harassment policy was discussed with the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff was served this copy sometime after mid-September, 2009. It was the first time the Plaintiff was shown and shared a copy of this PER. The Plaintiff was never given an opportunity to review and sign the PER. Moreover, on September 11, 2009, when the evaluation meeting purportedly took place the Plaintiff was off duty, in particular his scheduled day off. The Plaintiff also noticed that the Detachment Commander had signed off and added his comments on the PER. The fraudulence of that PER sent a clear message to management in the OPP's headquarters in Orillia that, amongst other things, the Plaintiff was not accepting responsibility for his deficiencies in the PER.
154. The last two pages of the Month 8 PER relating to the Plaintiff, his coach officer and his supervisor's comments and signatures, the Detachment Commander's comments and signature are appended on the next page:

Comments (Mandatory): During this evaluation period, PC JACK, his Supervisor and an OPPA Rep met with S/Sgt. R. CAMPBELL to discuss various issues he has experienced recently with his progress. PC JACK insists he has not had the assistance to meet the goals outlined in the evaluation. PC JACK's Supervisor outlined steps that had been taken to assist but were not utilized by the member. It also became apparent that PC JACK has created some animosity amongst his fellow officers by "answer shopping" with Detachment members. The other members were not provided with full disclosure of the entire situation and then provided opinions based on partial information. This answer shopping continued until PC JACK found someone who would agree with his own opinion based on partial information. PC JACK has been offered a fresh perspective with his move to Platoon D. He will be getting closer direct supervision from a new coach officer in an effort to ensure he has the proper tools to succeed.

EXHIBIT 27

155. It was in the months following the January 16, 2012, disclosure obligations deadline, while reviewing all of the material provided by the Respondent that the Plaintiff came to realize that the Respondent had to be aware that these were Criminal Code violations and yet they were trying to defend themselves. Though the Plaintiff was reminded by his representative, Mr. Tapp that he wished they had filed a Statement of Claim, he and Mr. Tapp were not sure if it could still be done because of the Human Rights Application set to commence in a hearing on May 22, 2012.

- a. The Plaintiff believes that the cumulative effects of these defamatory acts of slander and libel did incite hatred in the form of disdain and contempt towards him and is prepared to testify as to how these acts of defamation laid a foundation from which many of the Defendants felt comfortable violating the Plaintiff's Human Rights, violating the Ontario Provincial Police Orders with respect to their dealings with the Plaintiff and poisoning the Plaintiff's work environment to the point of the Defendants being able to build up a file against the Plaintiff and present him with two options on December 15, 2009 – sign the letter of resignation or be fired right. Though the Plaintiff had placed some of his thoughts on paper in order to have a discussion with the Superintendent before the decision to terminate him was made he was not given the opportunity to do so.

Tort Damages in Civil Liability

156. The Rules of Civil Procedure in section 57.01 (1) indicate that the presiding Judge has certain Factors in Discretion in deciding costs:

57.01 (1) In exercising its discretion under section 131 of the Courts of Justice Act to award costs, the court may consider, in addition to the result in the proceeding and any offer to settle or to contribute made in writing,

(0.a) the principle of indemnity, including, where applicable, the experience of the lawyer for the party entitled to the costs as well as the rates charged and the hours spent by that lawyer;

(0.b) the amount of costs that an unsuccessful party could reasonably expect to pay in relation to the step in the proceeding for which costs are being fixed;

(a) the amount claimed and the amount recovered in the proceeding;

(b) the apportionment of liability;

(c) the complexity of the proceeding;

(d) the importance of the issues;

(e) the conduct of any party that tended to shorten or to lengthen unnecessarily the duration of the proceeding;

(f) whether any step in the proceeding was,

- (i) improper, vexatious or unnecessary, or
 - (ii) taken through negligence, mistake or excessive caution;
- (g) a party's denial of or refusal to admit anything that should have been admitted;
- (h) whether it is appropriate to award any costs or more than one set of costs where a party,
 - (i) commenced separate proceedings for claims that should have been made in one proceeding, or
 - (ii) in defending a proceeding separated unnecessarily from another party in the same interest or defended by a different lawyer; and
- (i) any other matter relevant to the question of costs. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.01 (1); O. Reg. 627/98, s. 6; O. Reg. 42/05, s. 4 (1); O. Reg. 575/07, s. 1.

Causation-in-Fact

157. In Snell v. Farrell, Canada's Supreme Court greatly simplified things by saying (1) scientific evidence is not required and that (2) that causation can be inferred from the facts 'in the absence of evidence to the contrary adduced by the Defendant.'
158. The Plaintiff firmly believes that, had he not been racially discriminated against, but rather treated like any other member of that Detachment he would have certainly passed his probation period and would have been well on his way into a promising career. He further believes that due to his personal attributes, skills and qualifications that he would have had a lengthy career within the OPP with the definite possibility of promotion and continued promotions. He can state this most assuredly based on his strong work ethics and self-driving desire to excel at every given task which had been proven with his time at Trent University, his previous employment history and his military service in the Israeli Navy.
159. The Plaintiff believes that were it not for the Application that he filed before the HRTO (that is now deferred pending a full withdrawal – see items 232 and 233) and the disclosure provided to him on January 16, 2012, he would not have learned of the serious indictable offences contrary to sections 300, 301 and 319(2) of the Criminal Code of Canada that were committed against him. These offences made it abundantly clear to the Plaintiff that he was an undesirable that the OPP carelessly allowed to slip through the cracks, so to speak, in offering him employment and so it was up to the detachment to build up a file to justify his forced termination. This is evidenced by the OPP's psychologist Dr. Denis Lapalme sending an e-mail response to management regarding their request for him to examine the Plaintiff a second time (while the Plaintiff was at the training academy in Orillia) over the concerns raised in the libellously defamatory e-mail from Sgt. Rathbun. That e-mail response from the psychologist stated among other things, "... after all we have offered him employment ...".

160. The Plaintiff further believes that had he not have been given a racially derogatory nickname, let alone any nickname, not defamed and not treated in the manner he was treated in as mentioned in this Claim, namely, but not limited to: not being treated differently, not being criticized about his accent, not being referred to as an incompetent recruit (by his supervisor), not being charged falsely under the Highway Traffic Act, not being investigated by the PSB for associating with Undesirables, not being stigmatized as being an undesirable because of the fabricated allegation of him associating with Albanian organized crime, not being belittled and reprimanded for exercising his rights as a Canadian citizen, his health would not have deteriorated to the extent where he was diagnosed with PTSD, sleeping disorders, severe anxiety and other ailments as referenced under the heading Effects of Discrimination of this Claim.

Addressing the Concern of an Abuse of Process

161. Though the OPP Defendants might argue for the dismissal of this action on the grounds that it is an abuse of process because the Criminal Code allegations were gleaned through the obligatory requirements of another judicial process the Plaintiff asks: Is it okay for the OPP Defendants to know that they have committed these serious indictable offences and pretend that they are innocent and that something was wrong with the Plaintiff which is why he was not allowed to pass his probationary period so as to secure permanent employment?
162. The OPP Defendants have callously committed serious criminal offences and violated Ontario Public Service training protocols on valuing diversity and treating each other with dignity and respect and so is it okay for them to not be held accountable?
163. Once these serious indictable offenses became knowledge to the Plaintiff he began drafting this action and had it filed well within the limitation period. He also put forth a request to the HRTO and had his Application deferred (refer to item 233) so as to not have two judicial processes proceeding simultaneously and also indicated in his request that the Application would be withdrawn should his Claim be allowed to proceed.
164. The Plaintiff is of the belief that this Honourable Court has to consider the ramifications of bringing the administration of justice into disrepute if it decides to omit this information about these serious indictable offences that the Plaintiff gleaned on the basis that it came from the disclosure obligations of another judicial process because, the offences were committed by an organization that is sworn to uphold the law and not break the law. It is also sworn to uphold the protocols of the Ontario Public Service and in not doing so the Plaintiff firmly believes that there are many more victims who are afraid to come forward because of fear of reprisals. He is personally aware of one police officer who had contacted him and his representative in 2011 regarding harassment and discrimination that she was facing and having transferred from one detachment to another and then another in an attempt to escape from it all she finally resigned.

165. Finally the Plaintiff asks this Honourable Court if any other ordinary person would do the same if faced with similar circumstances. He believes that such a person would and he also believes that the public would be appalled to know that such a provincial organization was committing these serious offences and was allowed to go unpunished.

General Damages – Economic Loss

166. The OPP's denial of or refusal to admit that the Plaintiff was Racially Discriminated against even though documentary evidence was shared among the managers of the Peterborough Detachment acknowledging Human Rights violations are viewed by the Plaintiff as being extremely atrocious and akin to culpable negligence. The Plaintiff asserts that aside from the actions of the Defendants at the Peterborough Detachment (that were racially motivated), the only factors barring him from passing his probationary period were the Performance Evaluation Reports, the false charge under the Highway Traffic Act and the false internal complaint of Associating with the so called Undesirables. Through documentary evidence he is able to show that the PERs were wrought with fraudulence, the charge under the HTA was indeed found to be lacking credibility and the internal investigation was unsubstantiated. That being said, the Plaintiff firmly believes he has been deprived of a complete career as a police officer with the OPP and robbed of the wages of an OPP officer.

167. The General Damages being claimed by the Plaintiff are from January, 2010, to December, 2010, as a third class Constable where he would have earned his base salary of $61,790.00. From January, 2011, to December, 2011, he would have been a second class Constable with a base salary of $69,304.00. From January, 2012, he would have earned the base salary of a first class Constable of $83,483.00 at minimum without taking into account future wage increases: Hence, the Plaintiff has been deprived of wages, between January, 2010, to December, 2011, totalling $131,094.00;
168. Hence the Plaintiff has been deprived of wages, between January, 2012, to December, 2039, through which time he would have earned at minimum a total salary of $2,254,041.00,

169. The Plaintiff firmly believes that he would have been able to retire with a rank of, at minimum, an Inspector for he had all of the academic accreditations based on his previous work history and his time at Trent University, the Ontario Police College and the Provincial Police Academy in Orillia. An Inspector makes at minimum $30,000.00 more than a Constable. If one was to reach that level after twenty years then it could be reasonably stated that the Plaintiff has been deprived of that added income for ten years until retirement at 30 years of service for a total amount of: $300,000.00.
170. The Plaintiff's firmly believes that he would have attained the rank of Sergeant after eleven years of service and then the rank of Staff Sergeant which precedes the rank of Inspector. A sergeant earns $10,000 more than a first class Constable and a Staff Sergeant earns about $8,000 to $10,000 more than a Sergeant. Hence, if one were to average the excess salary for nine years (based upon the Plaintiff becoming an Inspector after twenty years of service) at a minimum of $10,000 then the Plaintiff has been deprived of an added income of $90,000.00,
171. The Plaintiff has also been deprived of an accrued pension that would have been, at minimum, $600,000.00,
172. For the expenses anticipated in travelling back and forth to Canada to keep this Claim before the judicial system the Plaintiff claims, at minimum: $20,000.00.

Punitive Damages – Personal Injury Loss

173. The actions of the Defendant OPP as referenced in this Claim were malicious (giving the Plaintiff a racially derogatory nickname of 'Crazy Ivan' or in other words 'Crazy Russian', falsely stating that the Plaintiff had killed by shooting many people during his time with the Israeli Army, falsely charging him under the Highway Traffic Act, fabricating false accusations against him, fabricating a number of his PERs and further investigating him for allegedly associating with an Albanian organized crime group, etc.). These acts were also highhanded and heinous and were it not for these acts the Plaintiff's health would not have deteriorated to the extent referenced in items 91 to 95 of this Claim under the heading effects of discrimination. These acts were exacerbated by the OPP's denial of and/or refusal to admit anything that should have been admitted and as such the Plaintiff claims a total amount of: $250,000.00 from the OPP.
174. This amount appears to be consistent with the amount awarded to Nancy Shultz of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (hereinafter the RCMP) as a result of her successful action against the RCMP in the British Columbia Superior Court of Justice, albeit, her experiences pale in comparison to those of the Plaintiff (Shultz v. Attorney General et al, 2006 BCSC 99). Being that this is a precedent setting case against the OPP this amount is viewed by the Plaintiff as most apropos.

Aggravated Damages

175. The OPP has a duty imposed on them by law and by the Ontario Public Service to treat each of its employees with dignity and respect having regard to the Human Rights Code. The Plaintiff asserts that the actions of the Defendants, especially the OPP and the OPPA were egregious and malicious especially in light of the e-mails between management at the Peterborough Detachment that the OPP were aware of Human Rights violations being committed against the Plaintiff and callously chose to ignore the violations. Furthermore, the prevention of such violations is of paramount concern to the Government of Ontario which is why every member of the Provincial Government in all of its various ministries has to take mandatory e-training modules with respect to valuing diversity in the workplace and preventing workplace harassment. The OPP is in dire violations of these training modules. The cumulative effect of these violations by the Defendants upon the Plaintiff, aside from being injurious to his health, left him with the genuine feeling that he was treated like trash. It also made him believe that Canada let him down.
176. The Plaintiff believes that this action has the potential of being a precedent setting action that could become class action should more victims like him come forward. Public interest needs cannot be addressed by treating the actions of the Defendants lightly.
177. Furthermore, his injuries are lasting. He was literally ground into the dirt by the Defendants much like one does to a cigarette butt. The actions of the Defendant

OPP turned a well-respected Trent University Computer Science instructor into a worthless and self-conscious nervous wreck.

178. The actions of the Defendant caused severe emotional pain, anguish and grief to the point that at the time it was happening he would suffer from nosebleeds. It was so severe that on one occasion on August 15, 2009, he had to stop at a community police office on his way to a call to attempt to stop the bleeding and had to call in sick the following day.
179. Recently the office of the Ontario Ombudsman released a report detailing and criticizing the OPP's negligence in dealing with PTSD amongst its employee's and the OPP's wanton disregard for not acknowledging its existence amongst employees that did suffer from it.
180. To the date of the filing of this Claim the Plaintiff suffers from the effects of PTSD brought on by the discrimination and harassment that he experienced. The humiliation, wounded pride, damaged self-confidence or self-esteem continues to affect his daily life and his well-being. As such he finds himself being forced to constantly take antidepressant medication.
181. The unconstitutional actions of these government servants were oppressive and their criminal actions against the Plaintiff were committed contrary to sections 300, 301 and/or 319(2) of the Criminal Code.

182. For all of the aforementioned (items 175 to 181), the Plaintiff claims aggravated damages in the sum of $250,000.00 from the OPP and OPPA jointly.
183. All other costs incurred in the pursuit of this Claim and evidenced with receipts and/or other documentary evidence.

Crown Liability

184. The Plaintiff believes that he does have the right to hold the Crown Defendant accountable in this Claim under authority of Proceedings Against the Crown Act, R.S.O. 1990 wherein it is stated:

Liability in tort

5.(1) Except as otherwise provided in this Act, and despite section 71 of Part VI (Interpretation) of the Legislation Act, 2006, the Crown is subject to all liabilities in tort to which, if it were a person of full age and capacity, it would be subject,

- (a) in respect of a tort committed by any of its servants or agents;
- (b) in respect of a breach of the duties that one owes to one's servants or agents by reason of being their employer;
- (c) in respect of any breach of the duties attaching to the ownership, occupation, possession or control of property; and

(d) under any statute, or under any regulation or by-law made or passed under the authority of any statute. R.S.O. 1990, c. P.27, s. 5 (1); 2006, c. 21, Sched. F, s. 124.

(2) No proceeding shall be brought against the Crown under clause (1) (a) in respect of an act or omission of a servant or agent of the Crown unless a proceeding in tort in respect of such act or omission may be brought against that servant or agent or the personal representative of the servant or agent. R.S.O. 1990, c. P.27, s. 5 (2).

185. The Proceedings Against the Crown Act further states that the Crown has to be served notice prior to initiating an action:

‘7.(1) Subject to subsection (3), except in the case of a counterClaim or Claim by way of set-off, no action for a Claim shall be commenced against the Crown unless the Claimant has, at least sixty days before the commencement of the action, served on the Crown a notice of the Claim containing sufficient particulars to identify the occasion out of which the Claim arose, and the Attorney General may require such additional particulars as in his or her opinion are necessary to enable the Claim to be investigated.’

186. Notice was served on the Crown, albeit not in manner done by professional lawyers but it was accepted by crown Counsel and the Plaintiff is appreciative of the understanding provided.

Reason for Requesting another Jurisdiction to hear this Claim

187. The Plaintiff believes that the Ontario Provincial Police has influence over the administration of justice in Peterborough County and other small counties under the OPP's jurisdiction which is why he is seeking to have this Claim adjudicated in the City of Toronto. The Plaintiff cites his case that was tried in the Provincial Courts in the City of Peterborough and is prepared provide the disclosure provided to him which was used by the Ministry of the Attorney General's office in determining reasonable prospect of conviction and the decision to proceed with a hearing.
188. Aside from the fact that the charge was completely false and fabricated, the Plaintiff believes that there simply was no basis for a conviction. For the Ministry of the Attorney General to proceed with a trial was a violation of the Plaintiff's Constitutional Rights as a Canadian citizen and a decision that was influenced by the OPP. A friend of the Plaintiff who is a paralegal and had one of his colleagues represent the Plaintiff and who was subsequently falsely charged with criminal offences, while at the Peterborough courthouse one day was told by a senior officer from the Peterborough Detachment in respect to his false charges, 'That's what you get for helping Michael Jack.'
189. It is in light of the aforementioned that the Plaintiff is seeking to have this Claim adjudicated in the City of Toronto.

Reason for Delay

190. The Limitations Act in section 4 sets a time period for the commencement of a Claim:

‘Unless this Act provides otherwise, a proceeding shall not be commenced in respect of a Claim after the second anniversary of the day on which the Claim was discovered. 2002, c. 24, Sched. B, s. 4.’

191. This Claim is about Defamation by Libel and Slander as indicated on the information that in turn paved the way for the Human Rights violations. This Claim was discovered in the few months after January 16, 2012, and before May 22, 2012.

192. Section 5(1) defines when a Claim is discovered:

5.(1) A Claim is discovered on the earlier of,

(a) the day on which the person with the Claim first knew,

(i) that the injury, loss or damage had occurred,

(ii) that the injury, loss or damage was caused by or contributed to by an act or omission,

(iii) that the act or omission was that of the person against whom the Claim is made, and

(iv) that, having regard to the nature of the injury, loss or damage, a proceeding would be an appropriate means to seek to remedy it; and

(b) the day on which a reasonable person with the abilities and in the circumstances of the person with the Claim first ought to have known of the matters referred to in clause (a). 2002, c. 24, Sched. B, s. 5 (1).

193. The presumption in section 5 (2) states:

‘A person with a Claim shall be presumed to have known of the matters referred to in clause (1) (a) on the day the act or omission on which the Claim is based took place, unless the contrary is proved. 2002, c. 24, Sched. B, s. 5 (2)’

194. As per the information for this action, though the Plaintiff might have suspected Defamation by Libel and Slander he did not know it until January, 2012.

195. With respect to the injuries to his health the Plaintiff believes that, though he is under the burden of the demands that are placed on him under section 5(1) (a) there is sufficient evidence, as alluded to in this Claim that, due to the nature of the injury, loss and damage, all of which were committed by the Defendants in this Claim, a proceeding would be an appropriate means to seek to remedy it.

196. With respect to sections 5(1)(b) and 5(2) the Plaintiff can only state that , as alluded to earlier in this Claim he was an immigrant from Israel who came to Canada to pursue a higher education in the city of Peterborough, Ontario. Prior to setting his goal to be a police officer in Ontario he had no exposure to policing and had no knowledge of the laws of Canada. Even when he became a police officer his knowledge of the law was limited to what was taught at the Ontario Police College. He had no knowledge of the Limitations Act and its authority over the various processes of the administration of justice.

197. Prior to joining the OPP he was employed as a part-time professor at Trent University where he never experienced any acts of discrimination. However, he was shocked at the blatant acts of discrimination being committed by the Defendants to the point of his health deteriorating to the extent as mentioned elsewhere in this Claim. The Plaintiff was terminated from his employment on December the 15th, 2009.
198. After the termination of his employment he struggled to get his health back and though he knew that what happened to him over the course of his brief employment at the Peterborough Detachment of the OPP he felt helpless due to the effects of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder that eroded his self-esteem and self-confidence.
199. The Plaintiff spent the next year trying to get a job, but soon realized he had been blackballed by the OPP. His very limited funds was soon consumed when he enlisted the services of a reputable Law Firm, Feltmate, Delibato, Heagle LLP namely Kimberley Wolfe (hereafter referred to as Mrs. Wolfe), a former member of the firm and member of the Law Society of Upper Canada to pursue action against the Defendant for the racial discrimination he endured and his wrongful dismissal from employment.

200. Being that the Plaintiff was ignorant of the appropriate administration of law to pursue he relied on the advice of his Counsel and filed an Application before the Human Rights Tribunal of Ontario (HRTO) on December 14th, 2010.
201. Mrs. Wolfe shared a copy of this confidential Application via e-mail to Counsel for the Respondent on or about December 16th, 2010.
202. Mrs. Wolfe subsequently removed herself from the representation of the Plaintiff due to an unexpected pregnancy. This action left the Plaintiff without any funds to retain another lawyer and he spent the next few months trying to get a lawyer to represent him either pro-bono or on a contingency basis, but was unsuccessful. His friend, Lloyd Tapp, subsequently agreed to act as his representative under rule 2 of the Tribunal's Rules of Procedure.
203. Through his friend, Mr. Tapp the Plaintiff realized that he should have filed a Statement of Claim with the Superior Court of Justice where an appropriate remedy could actually be sought. However, neither he nor his friend could be certain of their belief. The Plaintiff could not even get a lawyer to look at his case without having to pay a retainer fee which he could not afford. Once again, due to his limited knowledge, he and Mr. Tapp believed that since a course of action had already been commenced via a reputable law firm through the Ontario Human Rights Tribunal they had to follow it through with the hopes of having a judgement rendered against the OPP and then launch a civil action. Though his previous Counsel had placed a sum of one hundred thousand dollars as relief being sought, this amount was not something that was canvassed by the Plaintiff. His desire at the time the Application was filed was to expose the truth about the OPP by a successful Application.

- 204. A formal disclosure of the Application was made via the Tribunal on March the 27th, 2011.
- 205. The HRTO set the Application for a hearing after the Plaintiff declined an initial request by the Respondent for mediation.
- 206. The Plaintiff was unable to function properly in Canada for all attempts at seeking suitable employment after his termination from the OPP failed.
- 207. The Plaintiff, having returned to Israel to live with his parents with the intentions of returning however number of times if necessary, sought employment but could not find a steady job due to depression from PTSD. After about a year and a half he was able to find temporary employment and subsidises his income by giving private English tutorial lessons.
- 208. The hearing commenced on May the 22nd, 2012, and ran until May 24th, 2012, with another block of dates set for November 1 to 7, 2012.
- 209. On November 1st, 2012, the hearing continued before the seized Vice Chair, Mr. Keith Brennenstuhl, (hereinafter Vice Chair).

210. The Vice Chair suggested that mediation be looked into before proceeding that day and so the Plaintiff acquiesced.
211. The Plaintiff acquiesced based on the very strong recommendations of the Vice Chair that he had an enormous amount of material to go through and that he had not done so as of yet.
212. Based on this and other recommendations of the Vice Chair, the Plaintiff entertained mediation.
213. It was during this mediation that the Plaintiff learned from the Vice Chair that the amount of settlement that was mentioned on the second page of the Application, that being One Hundred Thousand dollars was an amount that was unreasonable and never before been awarded in the Tribunal history.
214. It was during that mediation that the Plaintiff made it known to the Vice Chair that it was not him that came up with that amount mentioned on page two of the Application, but his previous Counsel.
215. The Plaintiff had clearly told his Counsel at that time that he did not know what would be appropriate and to put down what she felt was appropriate. The effects of the PTSD still prevented him from seeing anything objectively at that time. The Plaintiff, ignorant of the proceedings of the law at that time did not even know about filing an amendment to the Application to remove the amount specified.

216. Hence, when the Vice Chair made the comments about the amount of settlement mentioned on page two of the Application being extraordinary, the Plaintiff advised that since the process was already commenced at the Tribunal by his previous Counsel he was hoping to get a finding registered against the Defendant and use that finding to launch a Civil Action at the Ontario Superior Court of Justice for liability damages in Tort.
217. When asked why he had not done so, he and his representative, Lloyd Tapp advised that they are ordinary citizens with no legal expertise and were of the genuine belief that because of the Application having already initiated a hearing, they would have to wait and hope to have a successful outcome of the Application before the Tribunal before launching the Civil Action.
218. It was at this mediation (November 1st, 2012) that the Plaintiff and his Representative got educated through the comments of the Vice Chair that, should the Plaintiff have filed the Civil Action the Application before the Tribunal would have been frozen until the disposition of the Civil Action.
219. Furthermore, the Plaintiff believes that sub-clause (b) of section 5 (1) of the Limitations Act is met and that the information as contained in items 188 to 218 provides evidence to the contrary which is a requirement for section 5 (2).
220. In light of this information the Plaintiff had this Statement of Claim drafted against the Defendants as identified. Though the Defendants might very well argue that the Statute of Limitations has expired, the Plaintiff prays that consideration be given due his lack of knowledge, his vulnerability status (termination of employment, deterioration of his health, feelings of being worthless, hopelessness and despair at all the failed attempts in seeking employment as a police officer with other police services and feelings of being all alone in a foreign country that let him down) and the fact that he was led astray by his Counsel with respect to which judicial process to initiate and then basically dumping him. The Plaintiff further prays that consideration be given in light of the offences under the Criminal Code of Canada that were committed against him.

221. Due to the nature of this Claim, the bold allegations being made of an organization (the OPP) that repeatedly professes that they are second to none in all of Canada, the clear and convincing evidence that will expose the truth about the Ontario Provincial Police in their continued violations of the Code and their failure to address the conduct at issue minority members are at risk by OPP's wilful non-compliance with the Ontario Human Rights Code. There is a need to protect current victims within the organization that are afraid to come forward for fear of reprisals.
222. Furthermore, being that the Plaintiff has lost all sense of dignity and self-worth he has nothing to lose. As such, he has had his story posted on two websites that are loaded with information to expose the truth about the OPP, but has been mindful to edit the information that he gleaned from the disclosure provided by way of the Tribunal process.

223. In light of the aforementioned, should the Claim not be allowed to proceed the Plaintiff believes that the administration of justice would be brought into disrepute because of the strong evidence that the Plaintiff has gained through the two years of work by himself and Mr. Tapp - evidence that is just waiting to be presented through this Claim.
224. The Plaintiff will withdraw his Application before the Tribunal should this Claim be allowed to proceed.
225. Though the information in items 188 to 218 deal with when the Plaintiff became aware that a Claim was the appropriate way to proceed (November 1, 2012), it was the disclosure obligations of January 16, 2012, under the judicial process of the HRTO that he became aware of the amount of Defamation regarding him that existed and actually precipitated or at the least made it easy for the OPP Defendants to violate his rights under the Ontario Human Rights Code, violate Ontario Provincial Police Orders with respect to dealing with him and treat him like trash.
226. Under the Libel and Slander Act (R.S.O. 1990, Chapter L. 12) the limitation period in sections 5 and 6 deal with when the libel and/or slander came to the Plaintiff's knowledge, but section 7 stipulates that sections 5 and 6 only apply to newspapers. As such the Plaintiff can assuredly state that his Claim for Defamation by Libel and Slander does not relate to newspapers and so it must be brought pursuant to the Limitations Act, 2002, which state that there is a two year limitation period from the date upon which the proposed Plaintiff became aware of the alleged libellous or slanderous statements upon which to bring a court proceeding.

227. Hence, he believes that the limitation period should start on or after January 16, 2012.

228. Finally but not least, it is only through the exertion of the authority of the Superior Courts of Justice that the Plaintiff can hope to effect change and provide an appropriate remedy to give him closure for the effects of the racial discrimination and the overall treatment he endured.

Addressing the Concern of Double Jeopardy

229. The Plaintiff's ignorance of the law and vulnerability after his termination left him relying completely on the knowledge of a law firm that professed to be a reputable one. As mentioned earlier in this Claim the Plaintiff was not in the right state of mind even when his Counsel filed it in December of 2009 for he left the remedy being sought in her hands. Later after she vacated herself he spent several months trying to find another lawyer to take on a pro-bono (for the reputation that could be gleaned from holding the OPP accountable) basis or a contingency basis. However, he had no success.

230. Hence, he was left helpless and was left with no alternative other than to continue through with a process already initiated by a learned Counsel. He and his representative genuinely believed that they had to follow through with the process initiated and then launch a civil action. On November the 1st, 2012, when the Plaintiff learned that the civil action should have been initiated at which time the Tribunal process would be frozen, he had his representative start drafting this Claim.

231. This Claim is literally all the Plaintiff has to live for and coupled with his strong desire to expose the truth about the OPP and how its minority employees who speak with a thick accent are treated, he is extremely concerned of prematurely filing a withdrawal of his Application before the Tribunal in the event that his Claim is barred from proceeding for whatever reason. The barring reason that is of primary concern to the Plaintiff is that of over-coming a perceived breach of the Limitations Act.
232. For that reason he put forth a request for an order to have his Application deferred and on February 19, 2013, he received confirmation that his request was granted. The Plaintiff will be requesting a complete withdrawal of his Application should the Claim be allowed to proceed.
233. The interim decision of the Tribunal differing the Application is appended on the next three pages:

[1] The Applicant has made a Request seeking the deferral of the Application to a civil claim recently filed by the applicant as against the respondent, among others, with the Ontario Court of Justice.

[2] The applicant submits that the Application should be deferred until the Court has determined whether the applicant's statement of claim can proceed through the civil courts.

[3] Deferral of an application ensures that proceedings dealing with the same issues do not run concurrently, thereby raising the possibility of inconsistent decisions on the facts or law.

[4] Some of the factors that may be relevant in deciding whether to defer consideration of an application are the subject matter of the other proceeding, the nature of the other proceeding, the type of remedies available in the other proceeding, and whether it would be fair overall to the parties to defer, having regard to the status of each proceeding and the steps that have been taken to pursue them.

[5] In this case the statement of claim before the Court raises the same circumstances that gave rise to the Application. It would appear that there is a significant overlap between the issues addressed in the Statement of Claim and the issues that the Tribunal would likely deal with in considering the Application.

[6] The respondent has agreed to the deferral. In these circumstances, I find that it is appropriate for the Tribunal to defer further consideration of the Application.

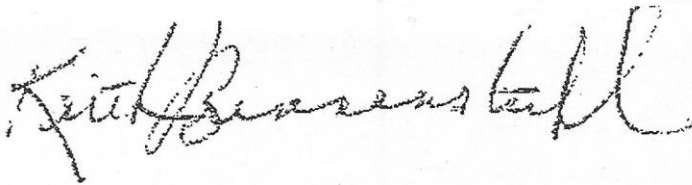

[7] The applicant has indicated that he will withdraw the Application should the Court allow the statement of claim to proceed through the civil courts.

[8] The Tribunal directs the parties' attention to Rules 14.3 and 14.4 which outline the process by which the Application may be brought back on before the Tribunal after the Court has determined whether the statement of claim may proceed through the civil courts.

[9] The respondent seeks an order for the dismissal of the Application on the basis that, amongst others, the contents of the statement of claim amount to an abuse of the Tribunal's process. The Tribunal may address this matter if the Application is brought back on before the Tribunal.

Dated at Toronto, this 19th day of February, 2013.

Addressing the Claim filed in error

234. Though the Plaintiff worked with Mr. Tapp in drafting this Claim, it was filed in haste on Monday, December 17, 2012. Shortly after filling it Mr. Tapp discovered that there were several grammatical errors and that reference was made to a statute of law in the United Kingdom – the Crown Liability Act. In Canada and in particular in Ontario it is known as the Proceedings Against the Crown Act or otherwise commonly referred to as the Crown Proceedings Act. The need to remove the paragraph referencing this act caused the numbering of the entire Claim to change. Furthermore, Mr. Tapp noticed that the name of one of the Defendants was misspelled. Aside from that, Mr. Tapp discovered that he used the wrong form (4A instead of 14F) for the information. Hence, the most expeditious route seemed to be the withdrawal of the Claim filed on December 17, 2012 under court file number CV-12-470261 and the refilling of Claim CV-12-470815 on December 21, 2013.

235. However, as pointed out by Counsel for the OPP, the Crown is required sixty days notice in writing pursuant to section 7 of the Proceedings Against the Crown Act. Mr. Tapp believed this notice only applied to the Government of Ontario, but learned from Counsel that the OPP is considered Crown. Hence, a notice of discontinuance against the OPP and its employees had to be filed and this Claim had to be filed after the expiry of the requisite sixty days. Mr. Tapp was able to address the errors that were pointed out to him.

Request for Special Representation

236. The Plaintiff's life was ruined by the actions of the Defendants.
237. To the date of this Claim the Plaintiff merely possesses a suitcase full of clothes that he can readily travel with back and forth to Canada for the hearings before the HRTO and ultimately via this Claim.
238. The Plaintiff cannot afford the high legal fees that lawyers set for handling such cases.

239. He has sought assistance of many lawyers, but has always been advised that he had to provide retainer fees of five to fifteen thousand dollars just to have them look at the case.
240. Under the Rules of Representation with the HRTO, the Plaintiff was able to get his friend, Lloyd Tapp to represent him.
241. Mr. Tapp, through his years of service as a police officer, especially in Toronto where he was exposed to several specialized units was able to accumulate a vast amount of knowledge regarding the administration of justice at various levels. His knowledge is gleaned from his work experience including and not limited to:
- (a) Mr. Tapp has been involved as 'Officer in Charge' of numerous cases before Judges at the Provincial Level;
 - (b) Involved in pre-trials;
 - (c) Involved in trials at the Superior Courts of Justice (361 University Avenue, Toronto);
 - (d) Involved in Judicial pre-trial conferences at both levels;
 - (e) Involved in trials before a judge alone and trials before a judge and jury at the Superior Courts of Justice;

- (f) Mr. Tapp has a thorough working knowledge of the Rules of Evidence and courtroom decorum;
- (g) Mr. Tapp has a thorough knowledge of the various documentations required for a case going through the judicial system involving criminal law;
- (h) Though Mr. Tapp is not a licenced lawyer under the Law Society of Upper Canada the Plaintiff believes Mr. Tapp is knowledgeable to locate specific documents as required no matter where or in which level a judicial process is being held. The Plaintiff also believes that though Mr. Tapp did make an error as mentioned in items 221 and 222, the error was identified and rectified by Mr. Tapp. Furthermore, Mr. Tapp has been getting more experience with the current judicial process that started at the Tribunal;
- (i) Though Mr. Tapp has never represented anyone at a civil trial he has had experience having gone through one himself.

242. The Plaintiff believes that it is a Judge's discretion to grant representation of the Plaintiff by a person other than one that is recognized by the Law Society of Upper Canada upon taking the following factors into consideration:

- (a) That said, the Plaintiff believes that the court, may permit someone to act as an agent and/or representative so long as there is no evidence that the person is dishonest or unethical. This is a discretionary decision by a Judge and so is not being taken by the Plaintiff as an automatic right. In deciding whether to permit someone to act as an agent and/or representative the court must consider a number of factors, including whether the proposed agent and/or representative: has been shown to be incompetent, would damage the fairness of the hearing or trial, is facing criminal charges involving dishonesty or the administration of justice, has been convicted of crimes of dishonesty, has otherwise demonstrated a lack of good character that would bring the administration of justice into disrepute.

(b) Mr. Tapp does meet all of the factors that are to be taken into consideration: he has, by virtue of his experience and his position towards the Plaintiff regarding the Plaintiff's Human Rights Application shown to be competent; his professionalism during his exposure to the judicial system at various levels through his years of being a police officer have never resulted in any criticism regarding any trial and/or hearing; he has never and is not facing any charges involving dishonesty or the administration of justice and in fact never faced any criminal charge whatsoever; he has never been accused of or demonstrated a lack of good character that would bring the administration of justice into disrepute.

(c) In R. v. Dick dated January 17, 2002, BCCA 27 docket: CA029122, in paragraph 16 the judge states, 'We use the word 'privilege' advisedly, there being clear authority for the proposition that, subject to statutory provisions otherwise, it lies within a court's discretion to permit or not to permit a person who is not a lawyer, to represent a litigant in court. In particular we note the judgment of Lord Denning in Engineers' and Managers' Association v. Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service et al. (No. 1), [1979] 3 All E.R. 223 (C.A.) at 225, the decision of the Privy Council in O'Toole v. Scott et al., [1965] 2 All E.R. 240 at 247; the comments of this Court in Venrose Holdings Ltd. v. Pacific Press Ltd. 1978 CanLII 378 (BC CA), (1978), 7 B.C.L.R. 298 at 304, where it was said that the discretionary power to grant a privilege of audience to other persons should be exercised 'rarely and with caution'; and the decision of Esson J. (as he then was) in B.C. Telephone Co. v. Rueben, 1982 CanLII 588 (BC SC), [1982] 5 W.W.R. 428 (B.C.S.C.), at 434.'

243. The Plaintiff believes that no lawyer could know the minute of details about his case better than Mr. Tapp. Furthermore, he believes that Mr. Tapp's knowledge about this Claim is predicated upon his experiences with the OPP and because of that belief no lawyer could possibly represent him with a passionate desire to pursue it to the end and hold the Defendants accountable for their actions.
244. Mr. Tapp is willing to represent the Plaintiff without any costs whatsoever. As stated in earlier in this Claim, the Plaintiff cannot afford the exorbitant fees of any Counsel and to not allow him to utilize the knowledge of his friend, Mr. Tapp would only serve to permanently bar him from seeking justice.

245. The Plaintiff believes that the administration of justice would actually be brought into disrepute if he is not allowed to utilize Mr. Tapp as his agent and/or representative who is willing to do so freely and voluntarily.

246. In light of the aforementioned the Plaintiff is seeking authority from a Judge to have Mr. Lloyd Tapp act as his agent and/or representative for this Statement of Claim.
